IRISH ARCHITECTS.

PROBLEMS OF HOUSING AND RECONSTRUCTION.

At the opening meeting of the twenty-seventh session of the Architectural Association of Ireland at 15 South Frederick lane, Dublin, last night, the President, Mr. T. J. Byrne, A.R.I.B.A., in the course of his inaugural address, said he believed that the Association had good reason for self-congratulation, for, despite the conditions militating against it in the recent past, all the ingredients of success and real prosperity remained within it, and were available to all its members.

There was much danger, he said, that in the buildings of to-day and to-morrow, not only the best of trade traditions, but even the rudiments of honest architecture, might be forgotten or neglected. He pleaded, therefore, for earnest thought from all concerned in reconstruction in all operations of repair, rebuilding, and refitting.

He urged the need for more sustained effort towards housing, especially in the direction of cost reduction. Such reductions must occur, as without them there could be no real amelioration of the existing defective conditions, no attempt to make up the shortage of dwellings, and no steps taken to keep pace with the ever-growing vital needs of the community. He need hardly draw attention to the beneficial effects that would follow general reductions in building costs.

In order to show that a downward tendency in the cost of building small houses had appeared, he instances that fair-sized five-roomed parlour houses had recently been contracted for at less than £600 in the city, and that smaller houses for country conditions, containing four apartments, were being built at prices between £360 and £380.

Mr. Byrne then referred to some of the outstanding features of Swedish architecture, as observed by him during a recent visit to Sweden. At Stockholm national characteristics were splendidly exemplified in a magnificent municipal palace, which was emblematic of the people, their history, and their aspirations. It was to be hoped that such buildings would soon arise in our own cities, to display to the world, in the dignified manner peculiar to architecture, the achievements and aspirations of the Irish people.

A vote of thanks to the President was passed, on the motion of Mr. O'Rourke, City Architect, seconded by Mr. Lucius O'Callaghan, R.H.A., ex-President.

M. Ricciotto Canudo, the novelist and poet, has died in Paris at the age of 45 after an illness which necessitated an operation. He was Italian by birth, but went to France in 1902 and made his home there.

PSEUDO-GAELICISM AND ITS FOLLY.

DISTORTED VIEWS IN NATION-BUILDING.

MR. BLYTHE AND THE LANGUAGE REVIVAL.

The opening meeting of the Trinity College Gaelic Society took place yesterday afternoon in the Regent House, Trinity College, Dublin. Professor T. F. O'Rahilly, M.A., President of the Society, who occupied the chair, opened the proceedings in Irish.

The Auditor, Mr. G. A. Duncan (Sch.), delivered an inaugural address on Pseudo-Gaelicism.

THE ADDRESS.

The Auditor, in the course of his address, said that they were now at the beginning of a section of their long voyage as a people, and three influences were seeking to impress their own characteristics and to direct the current of popular feeling. These groups had no connection with any political party, but were independent cross divisions, and their characteristics were reaction, progress and exclusion.

The first were weak in numbers, but strong in wealth and social influence, and kept their eyes ever turned longingly eastwards. The second group comprised the great mass of sane and intelligent people in the country, who did not always succeed in making their existence known, and who designed to advance by slow and safe degrees to an organisation of state and society in consonance with the peculiar needs and genius of the Irish people. The third party, for whom he had taken the liberty of coining the name pseudo-Gaels, did not form a very large element in the population, but their loud and aggressive tone gave the movement a fictitious weight and importance.

A FICTION AS AN IDEAL.

The pseudo-Gael had a distorted conception of the life and manners of the early Gael, and set up his fiction as the ideal to which national effort should be directed. Incomplete theories of the native Gael were eagerly snapped by the futile type of patriot, and false history supplied the food for his sentimentalism. They often saw unfortunate children dressed up in saffron kilts and cloaks. During the native monarchy, however, the ordinary dress of the Irishman consisted of a tunic, falling half way down the thigh, and close-fitting trousers. These garments were of the most varied colours, but there were only two instances of a yellow dye, and none whatever of the particular yellowish colour known as saffron.

Towards the end of the 16th century the kilt began to appear in the Highlands of Scotland, but did not make much headway until its adoption as the uniform of the Highland regiments in the British Army. The word "kilt" was of Danish origin, said the Auditor, while the word "trousers" was a direct derivative of the Irish word "triubhas."

Giraldus Cambrensis singled out the Irish harpers for especial praise, but bagpipers were probably not known at all till the 14th century, and the name was borrowed from Middle English, which was enough to show its foreign origin. The existing bellows form of pipes was of quite recent introduction, and from England, too.

Mr. Duncan denounced the jig and reel, and boldly asserted that "the real old Irish did not dance." He said that no writer of the native monarchy made any allusion that could be construed as a reference to dancing. Socalled Gaelic football was a quite recent artificial production, but hurling had a sound ancestry, and of it, hockey was a derivation.

Pseudo-Gaelicism was directly contrary to a most ingrained national characteristic—the remarkable readiness with which the Celtic peoples assimilated a foreign culture superior to their own pseudo-Gaelicism, did not arouse any enthusiasm in the mass of the people. It was taken up by people who were sufficiently intelligent to be able to attract public attention, but had not enough intelligence to perceive the unsoundness of their own views. (Applause.)

MR. ERNEST BLYTHE.

Mr. Blythe, Minister for Finance, proposing a vote of thanks to the Auditor, said that he was not sure that he went all the way with the Auditor in his address. He thought that in attacking pseudo-Gaelicism he was flogging, if not a dead horse, at any rate a horse that had contracted an incurable disease.

Pseudo-Gaelicism arose in a period of apparent hopelessness so far as the future of Irish Nationalists was concerned. They were losing all their peculiar characteristics. The prospect seemed to be that before very long the people of Ireland would no more constitute a nation than the people of Yorkshire.

The desperate struggle to save the national heritage had been the root cause of pseudo-Gaelicism. There was a sort of feeling with some people that they ought to save something from the wreckage, with the result that they had attached quite a ridiculous importance to such things as dances and games, while others, who did not feel fit to do anything in the matter of the language, which was the essential, had turned their attention to other side-shows. They were now past that stage, when they had at their disposal the machinery that would enable them to preserve and revive the Irish language.

THE LANGUAGE NOT DEAD.

The Irish language had not died out. The roots were there and the plant could spring up again. It wanted only the political change which had taken place to bring that growth. He believed that when people realised that there was every chance of this plant growing much of the extravagance which had grown round the movement for the revival of the language would disappear.

None of them wanted to go back to the Stone Age. They wanted to build up this country, and would look back to the past to see how they could get some sort of symmetrical building constructed. There was no danger, to his mind, that they would have some sort of movement of exclusiveness which would delay or prevent progress. The people had now responsibility put upon them and had had many illusions shattered. They had been brought to a point where they must consider questions on their merits.

SAINTS AND SCHOLARS GONE.

He did not believe anybody thought there was very much trace left now of the "Saints and Scholars." They were neither very much better nor worse than other peoples. However, he saw no way of having an intelligent and cultivated public opinion in a country like Ireland except through the preservation and revival of the national language. With it would grow up a spirit of devotion and genuine patriotism—a desire to advance the glory of the country to that high destiny which, with the eyes of faith, so many who had immolated themselves in the past had seen before them.

They were now at the beginning of a new era. Whatever justification in the past there had been for these pseudo-Gaelicists, there was now none. They wanted a spirit of sacrifice and service in this country. They wanted to face their task in a spirit of stern realism. The time was past when they should model themselves on the sentimental imbecile.

PROFESSOR R. M. HENRY.

Professor R. M. Henry, Queen's University, Belfast, in seconding the resolution, said that the Irish nation must be built up now or in the immediate future if it was to be built up at all, and what they had to concern themselves with was the study of Irish history, Gaelic civilisation, and the Irish language. The Irish had missed the disciplinary experience which they would have had they come under the sway of the Roman Empire. The struggle against Anglicisation was simply a refusal to borrow from outside that which, if left to itself, the Irish nation would have borrowed with a good heart.

"MOST IGNORANT PEOPLE."

Professor T. F. O'Rahilly, who complimented the Auditor, said that pseudo-Gaelicism owed its existence to the prevalent disease of ignorance. The Irish were probably the most ignorant people in the West of Europe, and of nothing were they more ignorant than of their own past.

The resolution was put, and adopted with applause.

WOMANHOOD

NOW she has joined that sedate company, the grown-ups. But she's just as fond of sweets as she used to be in her nursery days. Always she liked N.K.M. for its rich, real butter flavour. Nowadays, because there's even more butter in it, the flavour is better than ever, and having reached years of discretion she appreciates its absolute purity, too.

TALE OF A CHEQUE.

"MEDICAL STUDENT" AND A DUBLIN BANK.

In the Northern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, before Mr. Cooper, K.C., a well-dressed young man, who entered the dock on crutches, was charged by Inspector O'Connell and Detective Sergeant Lynch with attempting to obtain £10 cash on a cheque for £500, which he presented at the Munster and Leinster Bank, Sackville street, Dublin.

The accused's name was given as John William Barry, alias Cyril Lynn Grant, alias J. D. Barry, alias Brady, alias Lewis, and with a number of other aliases. It was stated that he was a native of South Wales.

Mr. Edward Hudson, accountant in the Munster and Leinster Bank, Sackville street branch, deposed that on Saturday, 29th September, about 10 a.m., a man came into the bank on crutches and presented a cheque for £500 drawn on the Bank of Liverpool and Martins, Limited, Kingsway branch. He asked to be allowed to open an account in the bank with the cheque, for £10 cash, and a receipt for the balance. He said he was a medical student at Trinity College.

While witness was filling up the deposit receipt requisition he asked accused were there two Lynn Grants in Trinity College, and was he the Lynn Grant that was known to the bank. He said it was rather strange that there were two students in Trinity College of the same name and the same initials, but that he thought Charles was the other man's name. The accused then told witness that his own name was Cyril J. Lynn Grant, and gave his address as Trinity College. He said his number was A8 in Trinity College, and that the other C. J. Lynn Grant's number was 30, which witness knew to be correct.

When witness asked the accused for some proof of his identity, the accused said he could be identified by Dr. O'Carroll, of Fitzwilliam square, and he left to fetch Dr. O'Carroll in a taxi-cab. Witness forwarded the cheque to the bank in Liverpool, and it was returned marked "No account."

Mr. Charles James Lynn Grant, Trinity College, stated that he had never known the accused to have been a student at Trinity. The endorsement at the back of the cheque (produced) was not in witness's handwriting. He knew the defendant in the Army as J. W. F. Berry.

Detective Officer Lynch stated that he visited Kelly's pawn office on Monday, where he saw the accused, who was then offering a watch in pawn. Witness told him who he was, and that he believed that he (accused) answered the description of a man wanted by the police. The accused gave his name as John W. Brady, of 4 Merrion road. He said his father was a retired solicitor, and that he (accused) was studying medicine. He had three cheque-books in his possession.

The accused was remanded in custody until Friday.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

DUBLIN LABOURER'S FALL FROM SCAFFOLDING.

At the Dublin Morgue yesterday a verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest on William McKenna, a labourer, 2 Mages's Court, Charlotte street, who died at the Mater Hospital as the result of injuries sustained when erecting a scaffolding in Botanic avenue on Friday.

Patrick Dowling deposed that he was working with McKenna on Friday last. As they were removing a plank from the scaffolding the scaffolding collapsed, and McKenna was thrown to the concrete floor. In witness's opinion the occurrence was purely accidental.

Mr. H. C. Shannon, of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce, said that he had inspected the scene of the occurrence. He thought that the scaffolding uprights had not been properly braced.

Dr. Good, who appeared for Messrs. Crampton, contractors, in whose employment McKenna had been, said that the firm much regretted the occurrence, and wished to express their sympathy with the relatives of the deceased man.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

At a meeting of the College of Science Association, in Dublin last night, a resolution was passed calling on the Government to restore the College buildings in Upper Merrion street, now used to house Government offices, to their legitimate uses.—(Page 6.)

When two men were sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment at Athlone yesterday, the magistrate promised to reconsider the punishment if a rifle which they carried on the night on which they committed the offence of which they were convicted was given up. One of the prisoners was taken twenty miles away by the military, and, having found the rifle, handed it to the Civic Guard. The sentences were afterwards reduced.—(Page 6.)

The British authorities have not yet made any announcement with reference to the re-opening of cross-Channel ports to Irish cattle.—(Page 6.)

At the Dublin County Commission yesterday James Brennan was sentenced to four months' imprisonment with hard labour for assaulting Peter Mulvihill, a rate collector, at Ardoghill, County Longford, with intent to rob.—(Page 7.)

A meeting of Convocation of the National University last night passed a resolution by a majority calling for the release of the political prisoners, including the Chancellor of the University (Mr. de Valera).—(Page 6.)

Mr. Ernest Blythe, Minister of Finance, was one of the speakers at the opening meeting of the Trinity College Gaelic Society yesterday, when Mr. G. A. Duncan, Auditor of the Society, delivered his inaugural address on "Pseudo-Gaelicism."—(Page 3.)

In the Northern Ireland Parliament yesterday Sir Dawson Bates, Minister of Home Affairs, said that the Curfew Order would be withdrawn as soon as that course was considered safe. To differentiate between areas would raise considerable difficulties. Mr. Coote said that they were particularly grateful for the Curfew in Tyrone and Fermanagh.—(Page 6.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. Baldwin, in the House of Commons yesterday, announced that the House would be dissolved on Friday next, and that he would appeal to the country on a protectionist policy.—(Page 5.)

Both sections of the British Liberal Party have re-united in view of the forthcoming general election.—(Page 5.)

The House of Commons yesterday discussed Mr. Baldwin's announcement of his advice to the Crown that the dissolution should take place on Friday next, and the Premier's action in precipitating a general election at such short notice was severely criticised by both Liberal and Labour members. All parties in the House joined in paying a tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Bonar Law.—(Page 5.)

ABROAD.

The ex-Crown Prince of Germany has arrived at Oels, Silesia. France is seriously concerned over his movements and the rumours of the ex-Kaiser's intentions, and there is talk of demanding their arrest. Great Britain's opinion is anxiously awaited. Berlin denies that the ex-Kaiser has received his passports.—(Page 5.)

SPORTING.

At Leicester yesterday Soval won the Leicestershire Handicap.—(Page 8.)

A British Election.

The Imperial Parliament will be dissolved on Friday, and thus one of the shortest sessions in history will come to an end. Writs for a general election will be issued immediately, and polling will take place throughout Britain and Northern Ireland on the 6th December. The Prime Minister told the House of Commons yesterday that he had come to the conclusion that Protection was the only remedy for unemployment. In view of Mr. Bonar Law's pledge, no change in the fiscal policy of the nation could take place during the life-time of the present Parliament; therefore he had decided to consult the electorate at the earliest possible opportunity. Any attempt to postpone the issue until next autumn would have been hopeless, and the revival of the controversy between Free Trade and Tariff Reform would have overshadowed everything else and would have made Parliamentary progress almost impossible. The problem, consequently, narrowed itself down to a choice between the immediate future and the middle of January, because, as Mr. Baldwin pointed out, the Government, if it is successful, wants to incorporate its new proposals in the next Budget. It was a choice between two evils, and Mr. Baldwin has chosen the less. An election next month will be a nuisance, but it will be over before Christmas, and then, perhaps, the nation will have a rest for a few years.

From the point of view of party tactics Mr. Baldwin has executed a clever stroke. The Labour Party has been taken unawares. Its political stock at present is rather low, and Mr. Ramsay Macdonald and his friends will find great difficulty in providing the £400,000 which will be necessary to finance the election campaigns of their four hundred prospective candidates. The Liberals, also, have been surprised. In their case, however, the resurrection of the old fiscal issue has been a god-send, inasmuch as it has supplied them with the skeleton of a policy at last. Moreover, it has brought about Liberal re-union, superficially at any rate; for at a party meeting yesterday Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Asquith, with their respective lieutenants, agreed for the purposes of the election to work in double harness again. Which, if either, of them will act as nominal leader is unknown, but they will present a united front at the hustings. Until Mr. Baldwin declares his policy in greater detail, however, neither Mr. Asquith nor Mr. Lloyd George is likely to make much headway in the constituencies. At present their attack is confined to foolish jests about currants and canned lobster, and the public will require something more than a policy of futile negation before it will be weaned from its allegiance to the Conservatives.

At present the Government commands a majority of seventy-seven over all other parties in the House of Commons. Out of 615 members 346 are Conservatives, 143 are Labour men, 117 are Liberals (both persuasions, and the remaining eight are what the Germans term Wilde, or nondescripts. The position in the constituencies is very interesting. In London the Conservatives hold 44 out of 62 seats. Their share of the 193 boroughs is 112, while in the English counties they have 153 out of 230 members. In England alone they command a clear majority; for of the 110 Scottish and Welsh seats they hold only 21. Will they be able to retain their lead? Speculation would be useless at this stage, but there is one factor in the situation which should not be ignored. Political thought has changed enormously within the past twenty years, and a totally new set of standards has arisen. The old glamour of Free Trade as a party slogan has disappeared very largely, and, although there is strong opposition to any measure of Protection in Manchester and the North of England generally, the Liberal leaders will be unable to work up that almost religious fervour which inflamed the great campaigns of 1905-1906. Be that as it may, Mr. Baldwin is staking not only his own political fortunes, but the whole future of British Conservatism on a single throw of the dice. No other problem will cut across the main issue of Protection against Tariff Reform. Even the European situation will fall into the background, and for the first time since 1910 a British election will be fought on a purely domestic controversy.

Culture and Politics.

"Pseudo-Gaelicism" was the title of the Auditor's address, last night, to the Trinity College Gaelic Society. It is an arresting title because it implies that there is, or has been, a certain amount of humbug, ignorance or false pretension in the Gaelic movement. Hitherto anybody who made such a charge in public was the subject of instant and violent censure and was lucky if he was called nothing more opprobrious than a "Castle hack." Mr. Duncan's address did not belie its title. It was an incisive criticism of certain very popular features of the Gaelic revival—the flaunting of practices which, as he showed, have no root in the history of Gaelic Ireland. He was bold enough to insist that the early Irish preferred trousers to kilts, did not play on bagpipes and cared for neither reels nor jigs—in fact, did not dance at all. Yet, although Mr. Duncan spoke in a centre of Gaelic culture, his audience heard this iconoclastic talk without anger. They may not have acquiesced in it—Mr. Blythe, the Minister of Finance, said that he did not go "all the way" with Mr. Duncan—but they recognised his full right to make his case. This new attitude is a most encouraging sign of the times, and we agree entirely with Professor O'Rahilly's opinion that it is a direct and immediate result of national self-government. The Gaelic movement was one of the weapons in the Anglo-Irish conflict and, as such, was soiled by much ignoble use. It became a shibboleth—a brand of distinction between classes and creeds. It was employed rather as a provocation to passion than as a stimulus to intellectual curiosity and the powers of the mind. If it is to be removed now to a calmer arena, the scope and quality of Gaelic studies will benefit largely in the near future. Sound standards of criticism will be created. The linguistic and literary merits of the language, and its national traditions, will make a far more cogent appeal to the minds of intelligent Irishmen than appeals barbed with political hatreds and prejudices were able to make in the past. Everything will depend on the extent to which the language movement is kept on the plane of culture and off the plane of public affairs. We agree that it has special claims and ought to get every reasonable encouragement from the Government and from Irish universities and schools. We are quite willing to accept Mr. Blythe's test that the language shall be valued and supported according to the measure of the profit which it confers on Ireland. If, however, the Irish language is made a touchstone of patriotism or, on any large scale, a condition of employment—if it is to be forced upon the rising generation under positive or negative penalties—those who love it with most knowledge will have every cause for regret. Such a policy will foster "pseudo-Gaelicism" in its most mischievous and most degrading form.

Spanish Railways.

There is a close similarity between the Spanish Directory's most pressing tasks and those of the Free State Government. The Directory is trying to balance its Budget by means of large economies. The Budget deficit during the last two years exceeded forty million pounds, and the short-term notes recently in circulation amounted to a larger sum than the country's annual revenue. In these circumstances the Directory is cutting down national expenses on all sides. It has dismissed unnecessary officials, has suppressed useless departments, has reduced the army and is inexorable in the collection of taxes. It is considering also a scheme for the funding of the floating debt. The railway companies present a problem which has some peculiar features. In recent years the Budget has been charged with an annual payment of some four millions to the Spanish railways, and the security for this advance, as the Madrid Correspondent of The Times explains, is doubtful. It seems that the railway traffic fluctuates in a remarkable fashion between fat and lean years. In 1918 the Government authorised an increase in railway tariffs of fifteen per cent. It refused afterwards to authorise further and still larger increases, but compromised on the subvention of four millions a year. This money continues to be paid, although since 1919 the railways' financial situation has improved and there is now a congestion of traffic. The position is complicated by the fact that the companies' concessions are nearing their time-limit and in a few years the lines will revert to the State. The Directory is resolved to reduce public expenditure on the railways, but has not decided yet which would be the more economic policy—a renewal of the companies' concessions or a reconsideration of the whole question of railway transport in Spain.

The Price of Petrol.

Twenty years ago the price of petrol was a matter which gave little concern to the average man; he did not care very much whether motor cars were run at the cost of a penny or of five shillings a mile. To-day the private motor car is far more common than was the private trap towards the end of the last century, and the first essential in the running of a motor vehicle is petrol. To petrol everything else is more or less secondary, and the variations in its price govern the use of cars. From the year 1896, when petrol cost 9d. a gallon, until the summer of 1920, when its price was over six times as high, the charges rose steadily. After 1920 there was a decrease in price until in the present year petrol cost about eighteen pence a gallon in England and a little more in this country, owing to the additional cost of freightage. In the near future the price of petrol may rise again. Two factors combine to make this rise probable—the under-production in America and the British Government's reported decision to sell its five million Anglo-Persian Oil Shares to one of the most important companies that deal with petrol. The under-production of petrol in America was contrived, of course, with a view to the raising of prices. Hitherto, however, the move has been unsuccessful; for, although as against the importation into Great Britain of forty-four million gallons of petrol in last July there were but twelve millions in September, the price has not been increased. The reason, no doubt, is that there were already in Great Britain large stocks of petrol. The future price is likely to depend on the issue of the present struggle between the combination of big interests and the smaller companies.

"PAINTERS OF LIGHT."

SECOND LECTURE OF HERMIONE SERIES.

Mr. Kaines Smith, this year's Hermione lecturer at Alexandra College, Dublin, delivered yesterday afternoon the second lecture of his series on "Painters of Light." The Archbishop of Dublin presided.

The lecturer said that to Poussin, the master of draughtsmanship, who never infused a particle of life into anything he drew, was to be ascribed the liberation of French art from its Renaissance traditions. It was from him that the greatest English landscape painter of the 18th century first caught his inspiration.

Mr. Kaines Smith next dealt with Claude de Lorraine, who began life as a Paris confectioner, and whose greatest works were never without a suspicion of the art of the bride's cake decorator. He was purely a painter of light, because he saw in everything merely a vehicle for moving luminosity. But he never lost a certain formal recognition of a picture as a decorative thing.

Screen presentations of pictures by Poussin, Claude de Lorraine, Fragonard, Millet, and Corot led the lecturer to Whistler, whose style he illustrated by "Cremorne Lights." He described Whistler as the most consummate humbug that ever used painting as a medium for the expression of his thoughts. There was no real light in anything he painted, nothing but the misty uncertainty of a Japanese woodcut. Not only did he, as Ruskin said, throw a pot of paint in the eyes of the public, but he blinded the public with paint.

Coming to the English landscape painters of the 18th and early 19th centuries, the lecturer gave a critical analysis of Gainsborough's "Coming Storm," one of the most marvellous pictures of the opposition of light and grey shadow that he knew of. He also told of the art of "poor old red-nosed Wilson," the half-starved genius, in some respects the greatest landscape painter of the first half of the 18th century.

Since he came to Dublin, the lecturer said, he had been asked why it was that there were so few Irish painters. In his opinion the chief reason was that there was in Ireland, as in Devonshire, such splendour, richness, and variety of colour that a painter with a real feeling for colour was at the outset discouraged from attempting to reproduce it. There was any number of Irish painters, and one of them was a painter of light, unequalled by few. That was George Barrett, one of the founders of the Royal Academy along with Nathaniel Hone, another Irishman. Barrett's picture of a Cumberland fell was a masterly rendering of a thing of beauty that few painters even see, and "yet you say you have no Irish painters."

This afternoon Mr. Kaines Smith will deal with Crome and the Norwich School.

"THE ROUND TABLE"

AT THE ABBEY THEATRE.

"The Round Table," Mr. Lennox Robinson's "comic tragedy," in three acts, was produced at the Abbey Theatre last night before a very good attendance.

Miss Eileen Crowe, the outstanding figure in the cast, played with vivacity, charm, and emotion as the occasion required. Miss Sara Allgood, if her part was not so exciting, had a role requiring as much subtle skill, and was a delightful Mrs. Drennan. Miss May Craig had a ready command of the expression and pose necessary to portray the character of Mrs. Williams-Williams. Indeed, everyone had grasped the essentials of his or her part so intelligently that only commendation can be given to all. Miss Maureen Delany, Miss Beatrice Elvery, Miss Dorothy Lynd, Miss Gertrude Murphy, Miss Christine Hayden, Miss Pearl Moore, and Messrs. Barry Fitzgerald, Arthur Shields, P. J. Carolan, Michael J. Dolan, F. J. McCormick, Gabriel J. Fallon, Peter Nolan, and P. J. McDonnell completed the company.

"Apartments," Mr. Fand O'Grady's one-act comedy, followed, and was very much enjoyed.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The deep depression over Scotland is likely to move slowly east. Winds will be from some westerly point in the South, a gale at times, tending to moderate later, with much cloud and intermittent rain. In the North winds will become northerly, and the weather will be cold, with some sleet or snow.

*Ireland.—Strong north-westerly winds; showers of rain, hail or sleet

A BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION.

DISSOLUTION ON FRIDAY.

WHY MR. BALDWIN GOES TO THE COUNTRY.

LIBERAL PARTIES REUNITED.

The Imperial Parliament will be dissolved on Friday next, and Mr. Baldwin will appeal to the country to release him from Mr. Bonar Law's pledge on the fiscal question, and to give him a mandate to incorporate in next year's Budget such measures as he may deem necessary for dealing with unemployment.

Mr. Baldwin made the announcement in the Commons yesterday.

In the event of a dissolution on Friday next, the nominations for a General Election will take place on Monday, November 26th, and the polling on Thursday, December 6th.

In the meantime, it is announced officially that both sections of the Liberal Party have re-united, and will work together during and after the General Election. Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George have settled plans for a campaign in common. A manifesto will be issued dealing with the "Protectionist plunge" of Mr. Baldwin's Government.

THE ONLY COURSE.

MR. BALDWIN'S REASON

Mr. Baldwin, in moving a resolution yesterday, taking the whole time of the House of Commons for the rest of the session, said—I shall be as brief as possible, and I am going to strike no note to-day of a more controversial character than I can possibly help.

I have given a great deal of thought, as I was obliged to do, in my office, to the whole question of unemployment, and I reached certain definite conclusions. I became so convinced that the conclusions which I had arrived at were right, that I could not have undertaken to remain in my present position, to attempt to steer the country through the winter of 1924-25 unless I was allowed to use an instrument which I could not use having regard to the pledge given a year ago by Mr. Bonar Law. (Hear, hear.) I have been urged to try to avoid that pledge as much as possible, but I have little skill in finding ways round. (Ministerial cheers.) It was no temptation to try to go on and keep in office using means that I was convinced were useless for my purpose—(hear, hear)—and it seemed to me that my only course, as an honest man, was to place my views before the country, and take my chance.

It became perfectly obvious as soon as I had done that, from speeches that were made by my opponents, that a General Election would have to take place before very long, and the point I had to decide then was whether it should be taken sooner or later. In my view, it was essential that it should be taken at such time that, if the country decided to release me from the pledge, and give me a mandate, I could incorporate in next year's Budget the measure that I believe would be necessary.

PERIOD LIMITED.

That, of course, limited the period within which a General Election would be possible. But a General Election is always a disturbing element, and should be got through, in the interests of the country, as quickly as possible. (Labour cries of "Oh," and Ministerial cheers.) There is a further reason—that so long as people know that an election must come within, say, a few months, the power of Parliament for work is crippled, and the power of the Government for action is crippled also.

These reasons, therefore, made me feel that it was my duty to advise the Crown to dissolve Parliament at the earliest possible moment. (Ministerial cheers.) I see no reason why the day should not be Friday next, November 16.

That brings me to this point—that there is a bill which it is of great importance to get through before the dissolution.

Mr. Hogge—The Merchandise Marks Bill. (Opposition laughter.)

Mr. Baldwin—The Workmen's Compensation Bill. I have decided to take that bill in such time as may be available to-night and all to-morrow, having been assured by the Opposition that, so far as they can arrange it, the third reading shall be passed to-morrow night, and I have undertaken, so far as I can arrange it, that the bill shall be dealt with with the necessary speed in another place.

I propose to give Thursday to the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Ramsay Macdonald), who will put down what is equivalent to a vote of censure on the Government—(Labour cheers)—which I shall be only too glad to meet when the occasion arises. (Ministerial cheers.)

The Marquis Curzon made a like announcement in the House of Lords.

LIBERALS RE-UNITED.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

FROM A POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday.

The following is the official statement agreed upon by both wings of the Liberal Party, following the meeting to-day:—Arrangements are now completed for the Liberals to fight the coming election as a united party. Both in the constituencies and at headquarters all candidates will be adopted and described as Liberals, and will be supported by the whole strength of the party, without regard to any past differences.

Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George, at the meeting this evening, settled plans for the campaign in common, and it is already certain that Liberal candidates will go to the poll in such numbers as to make united Liberalism a practical alternative to the present Government. The Liberal campaign will open immediately, and there will be a common issue of election literature from 42 Parliament street, London, S.W., and a common list of speakers allotted from Abingdon street, where Nos. 21 and 18 are being occupied in common by the Liberal Election Organisation.

Mr. Asquith has invited Mr. Lloyd George to speak at the Queen's Hall meeting, already arranged for Thursday afternoon, but in view of the House of Commons debate, this proves impracticable. It is, however, hoped that Mr. Fisher will take part.

The early meeting of the campaign will demonstrate to the country the reality of the unity now achieved, and the effectiveness of the united Liberal appeal. A manifesto will be issued dealing with the protectionist plunge of the Government, with the failure and inefficiency of their foreign policy, and with the Liberal policy for unemployment, and for other problems of the time.

MR. BRUCE'S PLANS.

The following announcement has been issued from Australia House:—

"In view of an early general election, Mr. Bruce feels obliged reluctantly to cancel his arrangements to attend public functions and engagements to speak. He will, however, avail himself of opportunities offered him to visit, as arranged, various manufacturing industries in the Midlands, Lancashire, and Yorkshire."

Commander C. B. Fry was unanimously chosen Liberal candidate for the Banbury Division of Oxfordshire, at a meeting of the Liberal Council last night, and promised to give his decision to-day.

In view of the general election, opinion in Kilmarnock Division is that there will be no by-election.

W. J. C. Davies, National Liberal member for Denbigh Division, is not seeking re-election, and is resuming the directorship of education for Denbighshire.

NO SURPRISE.

LABOUR AND THE ISSUE.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, Tuesday.

The announcement by the Prime Minister of the immediate dissolution of Parliament took nobody at Westminster by surprise. It was common knowledge, when the members reassembled to-day, that the autumn sitting was destined to be one of the shortest on record. According to present arrangements, the prorogation of Parliament, as well as the debate on the Vote of Censure, of which notice has been given by the Labour Party, will take place on Thursday. There will be a King's Speech, read by commission, and the usual formalities of the closing of the session.

The Dissolution Council will be held on Friday morning, and the writs for the summoning of the new Parliament will be sent out forthwith. The intervals between the issue of the writs, the nomination day, and the polling are fixed by statute.

The dates will be:—

Nominations, Monday, November 26th.

Polling day, Thursday, December 6th.

The reunion of the Liberal Party, brought about at this morning's conference, is cordially welcomed by members of both sections. Immediate action is being taken to put into effect the decision of the leaders. Instructions have been sent to agents of both groups throughout the country, directing them to take, without delay, what steps are necessary to ensure the closest co-operation between the hitherto rival organisations, for the purpose of the coming contest.

The policy for which the Government seeks the approval of the electors will be explained in detail in Mr. Baldwin's speech during Thursday's debate.

The Prime Minister's address to his constituents will be published at the end of the week.

The Labour Party has in preparation a manifesto which will be issued in the course of a few days. It will contrast the Government proposals with the Labour scheme for dealing with the unemployment problem.

A slight change of Parliamentary plans was made to-night, according to which the prorogation will take place on Friday morning, and will be followed, as before arranged, by the Dissolution Council at Buckingham Palace.

LABOUR VOTE OF CENSURE.

ALLEGATIONS OF SELF-INTEREST.

The vote of censure of the Government by the Labour Party was placed on the paper to-night in the names of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald and Mr. Clynes. It is as follows:—

"UNEMPLOYMENT, TRADE AND TARIFFS.

"That this House censures the neglect of His Majesty's Government to deal with the pressing needs of the unemployed; regrets its failure to devise and pursue a national policy calculated to restore the influence of the country abroad and re-establish international peace and trade; condemns the decision to leave millions of British people in want, in order to fight an election on an undisclosed scheme of tariffs and Imperial preference, conceived by sections of capitalists in their own interests, the effect of which must be to increase the cost of living and encourage the formation of anti-social trusts and combines."

GOVERNMENT WHIP.

The following three-lined whip has been issued to supporters of the Government:—

"On Wednesday, 14th November, the House will meet at 2.45 p.m. Workmen's Compensation Bill, remaining stages. Your attendance by 3.15 p.m. is particularly requested.

"B. EYRES MONSELL.

"NOTE.—Members are urgently requested to be in constant attendance at the House until Thursday night."

MARCHING TO THE GRAVE.

MR. CHURCHILL'S VIEW.

Proposing "The Houses of Parliament," at a dinner of the Coal Trades Benevolent Association in London last night, Mr. Churchill said that the representative Assembly—the House of Commons—was marching silently and docilely to execution, blindfolded. The tranquillity which it sought it had found only in the grave. He was sure it was a very well-meaning Parliament, and it might have settled all sorts of difficult questions; but, instead, it had committed hari-kari, and it was no more.

Although they saw on the Continent one Parliamentary system after another which the nineteenth century so hopefully and so laboriously built up swept away by revolutionary thrusts, or by the Mussolini touch, he still hoped that in Britain, the home of Parliamentary institutions, of government by talking, by parley, by argument, by reason, by fair play, Parliamentary institutions would be preserved with renewed and revivified strength, and still hold up the lamp of constitutional, legalised authority, expressed through the medium of rational communication.

BY-ELECTION CANCELLED.

The Returning Officer for Warwick and Leamington has received a telegram from the Home Office, cancelling the by-election arrangements, in view of the general election. Yesterday's nominations are accordingly cancelled.

Although official figures are not likely to be completed for a few days, it is understood the Labour Party will have four hundred candidates in the electoral field. Our machinery is ready for setting in full motion, said one of the party organisers, and in no instance is Labour likely to be caught napping. Most of the sitting Labour members will probably seek re-election. A notable exception is Mr. John Hodge, who, after representing the Gorton Division of Lancashire for seventeen years, has intimated his desire to be relieved of his Parliamentary duties, to enable him to devote his energies mainly to the industrial side of the trade union movement. Mr. Hodge is President of the Iron and Steel Trades Confederation, one of the largest and most influential organisations of its kind.

IN SENATE AND DAIL.

NEW LEGISLATION AND PERSONNEL.

EFFECT OF BRITISH ELECTIONS.

FROM OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

The Senate of the Irish Free State will be faced to-day with the duty of making arrangements for the filling of the first two vacancies that have occurred in its membership since it came into being on the 10th of December, 1922.

Every person will regret that Sir Horace Plunkett finds it necessary, owing to the state of his health, to retire from active participation in the public life of Ireland, where he has been so conspicuous and so useful a personality for more than thirty years. All Dublin citizens who knew the late Senator MacPartlin respected him for his high character in the ranks of the working classes, a respect which they testified in a striking way in regard to his tragically sudden death in Switzerland.

According to the Constitution of the Free State the first Senate shall consist of sixty members, of whom thirty shall be elected, and thirty shall be nominated. The thirty nominated members have been nominated by the President of the Executive Council, who, in making the nomination, was bound to have special regard to the providing of representation for groups or parties not then adequately represented in the Dail. Of the thirty nominated members, fifteen, to be selected by lot, shall hold office for the full period of twelve years, the remaining fifteen to hold office for the period of six years. Of the thirty elected members, the first fifteen elected shall hold office for nine years, the remaining fifteen to hold office for three years.

At the termination of the period of office of any such members, others must be elected in their place in accordance with Article 32 of the Constitution, which says:—"One-fourth of the members of Seanad Eireann shall be elected every three years from a panel, and the area of jurisdiction of the Irish Free State shall form one electoral area, and the elections shall be held on the principles of proportional representation."

In case of the death, resignation, or disqualification of a member, his place shall be filled by a vote of the Senate; and any member so chosen shall retire from office at the conclusion of the three years' period then running.

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION.

The General Election in Great Britain is not without interest in Ireland, North and South. There are ten constituencies in Northern Ireland, which return thirteen members to the Imperial Parliament. These constituencies and their representatives are:—

County Antrim—Right Hon. Robert O'Neill, Captain Charles Craig.

County Armagh—Lieut.-Colonel Sir J. W. Allen.

Queen's University, Belfast—Sir William Whitla.

Belfast East—Captain H. Dixon.

Belfast, North—Mr. T. E. McConnell.

Belfast, South—Mr. Thomas Moles.

Belfast, West—Mr. R. J. Lynn.

County Down—Major-General Rev. J. M. Simms and Mr. D. D. Reid.

Fermanagh County and Tyrone County—Mr. T. J. S. Harbinson, Mr. Cahir Healy.

Londonderry County — Hon. Sir M. Macnaughton.

Mr. Cahir Healy is a prisoner on board the ship, Argenta, in Larne Harbour.

The result of the election will have a considerable effect upon the boundary question. Only fourteen months ago the joint constituency of Tyrone and Fermanagh returned two anti-Partition representatives. That return has had little or no effect upon the Northern Parliament. All Ireland will await with keen interest the result of the coming election, and the vote of Fermanagh and Tyrone, and of areas such as Derry and South Down cannot be disregarded by the Boundary Commission. Indeed, it may be said that the election in Northern Ireland will be fought on the boundary question.

NEW LEGISLATION.

When the Dail assembles to-day it will enter upon a big programme of legislation. First, there are 34 questions to be answered by Ministers. Among the questions is one by Alderman Alfred Byrne, who wants to know from the Minister for Finance whether, before reducing the old age pensions allowance, he will appoint a committee to consider the matter, and whether the advantages to be gained by the reduction are not out-weighed by the great hardship it will inflict on thousands of deserving pensioners.

Questions relating to income tax and the refund of overcharge stand in the names of Mr. P. W. Shaw and Mr. John J. Cole.

The House will be asked to consider the first stages of a Fisheries Bill, a Local Government Electors Registration Bill, a Local Elections Postponement Bill, a Gaming Bill.

The report of the Joint Committee on Private Bill procedure, a summary of which is given in another column, will be laid on the table.

Other business mentioned in the Orders of the Day includes the second reading of the Ministries Bill, the second reading of the Civil Service Regulations Bill, and the adjourned debate on the Governor-General's Address.

CURFEW IN ULSTER.

MEMBERS OPPOSE ITS WITHDRAWAL.

In Northern House of Commons yesterday, Colonel Woods asked the Minister of Home Affairs if he would now consider the desirability of withdrawing the Curfew Order in peaceful areas.

The Minister of Home Affairs replied that the Curfew Order would be withdrawn as soon as it was considered safe to do so. If the Curfew were withdrawn from areas which are peaceful at present, criminals from other areas would resort to those where the Curfew was withdrawn and where, as a consequence, their movements would be less restricted.

Colonel Woods raised the question upon the motion for the adjournment. He said that nowhere in the civilised world was there the same restrictions upon freedom which existed in Northern Ireland under the Curfew and other Acts. He knew of at least two cases where children died because the fathers could not go for a doctor during Curfew hours.

Mr. McGuffin and Mr. Coote were in favour of continuing the Curfew regulations. Mr. Coote said that all ordinary people were satisfied that the Curfew should come into operation at midnight. They were particularly grateful for the Curfew in Tyrone and Fermanagh, and since its introduction there was no more peaceful part of Great Britain and Ireland than the six counties.

Dr. Morrison said that he thought that the Curfew should come into operation at eleven o'clock in country districts.

Mr. Cooper agreed, and suggested that motor cars should be stopped and searched from ten o'clock each night.

The Minister for Home Affairs said that the only ground for complaint that had been submitted was that doctors were frequently stopped and their permits examined. He (Sir Dawson Bates) was stopped eight times one night, and the Attorney-General fifteen times. (Laughter.) The Government believed that the time had not yet arrived to remove the Curfew restrictions.

The Committee stage of the Trade Boards Bill was considered and progress was reported.

THE SUMMER-TIME ACT.

In the Northern Senate Mr. Leslie moved an amendment in committee stage of Expiring Laws Continuance Bill leaving out of the bill the Summer Time Act. It was not, he said, the general desire in country districts that Summer Time should be continued annually.

Lord Londonderry, on behalf of the Government, declined to accept the amendment, but suggested that if the hon. member brought forward a private member's bill next session he would undertake to use his influence to see that the matter would be discussed in the Northern Parliament.

Mr. Leslie withdrew the amendment.

M. Milorad Raitchevitch, a correspondent of the Belgrade newspaper Ballan, who is walking through Africa, arrived at Johannesburg on Sunday, having come through Egypt, the Congo, and Rhodesia.

EX-KAISER AND HIS SON.

FRANCE ANXIOUS.

SURRENDER MAY BE DEMANDED.

BRITISH LEAD WANTED

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

It is evident that a British decision in regard to the action to be taken to meet the situation in Germany is awaited with anxiety here.

The sense of danger caused by the return of the ex-Crown Prince is deepened to-day by reports that the ex-Kaiser is preparing to follow him, and the whole plot is discussed as foreshadowing the gravest perils to all the Allies and to Europe.

M. Cambon, in the conference of Ambassadors yesterday, strongly opposed the view taken in Herr Stresemann's Notes that it was impossible to prevent the return of the ex-Crown Prince, and invoked the article of the Peace Treaty providing for the delivery to the Allied Powers of any person charged with acts contrary to the laws of war who may be designated by the Governments.

The German repudiation of responsibility for ensuring the safety of the Military Control Commission is even more seriously regarded. Both developments are discussed as parts of one problem, the neglect of which must affect especially the safety of all the States bordering on Germany.

Satisfaction or sanction is the general demand. What these might be was not suggested at the conference yesterday, and is not mentioned now.

The Reparations Commission met this afternoon, and decided to hear representatives of the German Government on the subject of Germany's resources and capacity. M. Barthou, whose proposal it was that Germany should be heard, at the same time gave notice to move for the appointment of a committee to ascertain Germany's capacity to pay in the years 1924, 1925 and 1926.

GERMANY'S RESOURCES.

REICH REPRESENTATIVES TO GIVE EVIDENCE.

PARIS, Tuesday.

The Reparation Commission has decided to hear German representatives at an early date. This decision was taken unanimously on the motion of M. Barthou. No restrictions were made. Germans are to be allowed to make a full statement as requested in the German Note of October 24 on the actual state of the resources and the capacity of Germany to pay, etc. The date of hearing has been left for arrangement between the Secretary-General of the Reparations Commission and the Kriegslasten Kommission, who will be asked to name the earliest date convenient, which, it is thought, will not be before next week.

M. Barthou informed the Commission that he intended, after hearing the Germans, to propose the appointment by the Commission of a Committee of Experts of Allied and associated nationalities to discuss Germany's present capacity to pay, and to furnish the Commission with data, on which should be based the fixation of the German payments for 1924-5 and 1926. The experts, he said, should study Germany's resources at home and abroad, especially the latter.

M. Barthou emphasised that he did not desire a discussion on this scheme at present. He had merely notified his colleagues of his future policy.

SIR J. BRADBURY'S DOUBTS.

Replying to M. Barthou, Sir John Bradbury said that he agreed that the Germans should be heard, because this was provided for in the Treaty, but he expressed the gravest doubts whether, after the events of the past eleven months, the machinery of Part 8 of the Treaty had not been so completely compromised as to become incapable of functioning.

As regards M. Barthou's scheme for a Committee of Experts, Sir John Bradbury said that while withholding judgment pending the hearing of the Germans, he feared that the scheme was too restricted.

It is understood that the Belgian and Italian delegates and the American observer did not express any views.—(Reuter.)

NOTHING OFFICIAL IN LONDON.

Reuter's Agency understands that so far nothing has been received from Paris relative to M. Poincaré's proposal that the Reparations Commission should nominate a Committee of Experts to determine Germany's capacity for payment. It is, therefore, felt to be too early to offer any comment as to the British attitude to such a proposal, or as to the prospects of its success.

EX-CROWN PRINCE IN GERMANY.

OFFICIALLY INFORMED OF ALLIES' PROTESTS.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

OELS, SILESIA, Tuesday.

The ex-Crown Prince arrived at Oels at 6 o'clock this evening.

Through the special favour of the ex-Crown Princess, I was permitted earlier in the day to enter the big workroom in the Schloss Oels, which had been prepared as the ex-Crown Prince's study. Here I found everything prepared for his welcome home.

It is a simple room, high-ceilinged, and with immense windows overlooking the court. Its oak desk and oak table were covered with baskets and cases of flowers sent to grace the homecoming. Other flowers stood in vases before the plainly elegant bookcases, which recently have been filled with the ex-Crown Prince's favourite books. Among them were several new philosophical and historical works in English, as well as English works in a lighter vein. Wilhelm speaks English perfectly, without a trace of accent. He is very fond of the better-known British and American authors.

Among the floral tributes was an immense basket of chrysanthemums from the King of Saxony, which almost filled one corner of the chamber.

From circles close to the Castle I learn that the ex-Crown Prince was informed by the German Government yesterday that the Allies, particularly France, have made strong protests to the Chancellor, Herr Stresemann, against his return to German soil, even threatening to demand his delivery as one of the war criminals.

EX-KAISER MYSTERY.

BERLIN DENIES THAT HE RECEIVED PASSPORTS.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

AMSTERDAM, Tuesday.

From Berlin it is officially denied that the German Government has handed passports to the ex-Kaiser, authorising him to return to the Fatherland. It is not believed that the ex-Monarch will leave Holland. The reason for the visit to Doorn of M. Kan, the Dutch official, was not revealed, but M. Kan has visited the ex-Kaiser on numerous occasions.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

It is officially stated that the reports circulated in the foreign Press to the effect that the ex-Kaiser has been given permission by the German Government to return to Germany are untrue.—(Reuter.)

INDIANS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

GENERAL SMUTS'S POLICY CONDEMNED.

DELEGATE ON FUTURE DIFFICULTIES.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru leaves for India to-morrow, after attending the meetings of the Imperial Conference. Interviewed yesterday as to the results of his work in London, Sir Tej said:—"Briefly put, all the Dominions, except South Africa, have agreed to give effect to the resolution of 1921, while His Majesty's Government has similarly agreed in regard to the Crown Colonies. In spite of my repeated interviews with General Smuts, however, I failed completely with him. I suggested to him that, independently of the resolution of 1921, he should join hands with the Government of India in seeking a solution of the Indian problem in South Africa. He flatly refused. I raised questions as to Indian rights of trading, occupation of land in township areas, and the reception of a diplomatic agent on behalf of the Government of India for the protection of Indian Nationals in South Africa to act as intermediary between the Indian and Union Governments, and to make reports to the Government of India regarding the situation in South Africa. General Smuts made no statement whatever on any one of these questions. Throughout my conversations with him, excepting for a very brief period, I found him adamant.

"I think he heaped insult on the Government of India, and, though he stands forth as the champion of the unity of the British Empire, in my opinion he has done more harm to it than anyone else by his attitude of obstinacy towards India.

"I am willing to make full allowance for the party politics of South Africa, but I do think it is the duty of a leader and statesman to guide and control public opinion, and not merely to succumb to it.

TREMENDOUS FEELING IN INDIA.

"As regards the future, I have no right to commit the Government of India to any policy, but I have every reason to believe that they are alive to the urgency of the situation, and I cannot see how they can possibly refuse to associate themselves entirely with Indian sentiment on this question. So far as the people of India are concerned, they are not going to accept the sophisticated argument of General Smuts, and I am afraid that there will be tremendous feeling in India on the question of the position of Indians in South Africa.

"Until I have gone back to India and talked with my friends in public life, and with the Government of India, I do not wish to say anything as to the policy which will be adopted, but one thing quite clear to my mind is that the policy of General Smuts is going to lead to very serious results.

"India may not be self-governing yet, but it is a much stronger and more united India to-day than it was a few years ago.

"It is also clear that there is going to be no peace between the two units of the British Empire. However independent South Africa may be, I can foresee a stage being reached at no distant date when the question will cease to be a question of domestic policy, and will become a grave question of foreign policy.

UNITED EMPIRE IMPOSSIBLE.

"The reality of the situation in South Africa is scarcely realised by the English nation at present, but I have little doubt that those who honestly believe in a united Empire will much sooner than later realise it. It is possible that, even then, General Smuts may defy all public opinion, English and Indian, to the contrary, but if he does so he will furnish a curious comment upon his own conduct as a champion of a united Empire and a harbinger of peace in the world.

"On the other hand, I have every reason to feel gratified with the attitude of the other Dominion Prime Ministers, and also with regard to the Colonial Office, which treated me well in regard to Kenya, for the door which seemed to be bolted against us in July has been reopened.

"I have also received the greatest support from Lord Peel, Lord Reading, and other statesmen, and, on the eve of my departure, I desire to convey to them publicly my thanks."

QUESTION OF RE-OPENING CROSS-CHANNEL PORTS.

BRITISH AUTHORITIES SILENT.

We were informed by the Department of Agriculture late last night that no word had been received from the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries in London with regard to re-opening British ports for the import of Irish cattle.

Two officials of the Free State Department of Agriculture went to London last night to interview the authorities there.

FRESH OUTBREAKS.

FIRST APPEARANCE OF THE DISEASE IN KENT.

The Ministry of Agriculture (England) announces that foot-and-mouth disease has been confirmed on premises at St. Nicholas, Wade, Birchington, Kent, a county hitherto free from the disease, and the usual order has been made prohibiting movement of cattle, etc., out of or within the area within a radius of 15 miles from the premises.

New outbreaks at Underhill, near Evesham, Gloucestershire, and at Glenfarg, Perthshire, have necessitated extensions of the prohibited areas in those districts.

"POSITION SERIOUS."

STATEMENT IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Robert Sanders, replying to Sir Douglas Newton, said that the present series of outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease commenced on August 27, since when, and up to the 12th of November, 29 separate centres, involving 245 different farms, had become infected.

Seven of these centres were the outcome of infection contracted from two of the other centres, leaving 22, which appeared to be separate invasions. The 245 infected farms were in 17 counties in England, two in Wales, and six in Scotland. Seventy-nine of the outbreaks had occurred since October 31.

In eleven of the centres the disease had been eradicated, and the restrictions had been entirely withdrawn from seven. The position continued to be serious on account of the continued occurrence of outbreaks in new centres. Search had been made in all directions for a possible source of these repeated invasions, but so far without positive result.

ILLNESS OF SIR JAMES BARRIE.

We learn that Sir James Barrie is suffering from a serious breakdown in health. He is in the care of Sir Douglas Shields, the surgeon, in a Park lane nursing home.

MR. JUSTICE DARLING'S SUCCESSOR.

It is officially announced that the King has approved the appointment of Mr. G. J. Talbot, K.C., to be a Judge of the High Court of Justice, King's Bench Division, London, in room of the Right Hon. Sir Charles Darling, resigned. A son of the late Right Hon. J. G. Talbot, for many years one of the members for Oxford University, the new judge is 52 years of age. He is standing counsel to the University, and Chancellor of Lincoln, Ely, Lichfield, Southwark, and Winchester Dioceses.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE DISSOLUTION.

CLEARING FOR ACTION.

The Times, in a leading article upon the speech of the Prime Minister in the House of Commons yesterday, observes:—Mr. Baldwin's statement, which is to be amplified to-morrow, showed something of the same qualities which had just been commemorated in his predecessor. He justifies his conduct on the same moral grounds, and with the same reassuring frankness. He is going to the country because he is convinced that his policy is the right policy, and because this conviction is so strong upon him that he feels he could not have undertaken to remain Prime Minister and to "attempt to steer the country through the winter of 1924-25" without an instrument which the pledge inherited from Mr. Bonar Law forbids him to use. "My only course, as an honest man," he declares—not for the first time—"was to place my views before the country and to take my chance." If he obtains the mandate for which he asks, he wants to obtain it soon enough to enable him to incorporate the measures which he believes to be necessary in the Budget for next year. That is the consideration which, in his view, has made an early dissolution indispensable.

The most satisfactory feature of the Prime Minister's brief statement is that it appears to concentrate on release from the pledge as the main issue to be placed before the electorate. The more he insists upon that one point the better. There are already signs that even Unionist Free Traders, for instance in Lancashire, are ready to support him thus far, while reserving their right to oppose him afterwards on specific proposals should he use his freedom in ways of which they disapprove. The truth is that the country at large has an open mind on the whole question of protection. It feels every day that it is living in new conditions to which the arguments of twenty years ago no longer apply. It is at the least ready for inquiry, for tentative experiment. Thousands of people who agree with Labour in nothing else will agree with Mr. Jack Jones that the Prime Minister is, at all events, living up to his professions, and that if he gets the mandate he desires, he will have earned his success.

THE CAPITAL LEVY.

MR. SNOWDEN'S ADMISSION.

Mr. Snowden, referring on Monday night to the policy of a levy on capital, said that the time for proposing such a measure was not so favourable to-day as it would have been three or four years ago. It was an honest and, in the present circumstances of his party, a courageous thing to say, remarks The Times editorially. There is no need to force his words beyond their meaning. Mr. Snowden is a strong Labour man. He was in the years that immediately followed the war a supporter of the capital levy, and it may be assumed that he is still an adherent to it in principle. But he realises that the conditions to which that principle might have been applied four years ago are altogether different from those to which, if the Labour Party were successful at the polls, it would have to be applied to-day. Then there was an almost universal agreement that a levy on war profits and inflated values was at least a matter for argument, if it were practicable. To meet a part of the National Debt by an exceptional tax in such exceptional circumstances, seemed both just and expedient. Because it was exceptional and non-recurring, because it was addressed to a single, strictly limited purpose, it need not have shaken public confidence or endangered national credit. To-day the proposal of Labour, its object, and its circumstance, are altogether different from that limited proposal. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald makes no suggestion that the levy should be for once, and once only. He puts it forward with a vague gesture as a general alternative to any continuous and constructive policy. If trade is to be built up again on a solid foundation, if men are to risk new capital in new enterprises, and create new demands for labour, a feeling of security is the first essential.

LIBERAL REUNION.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S POLICY.

The Times Parliamentary Correspondent, writing in regard to the achievement of Liberal reunion at the conference in London yesterday, states:—During the evening Mr. Lloyd George addressed a meeting of his National Liberal followers, and explained to them in detail the result of the deliberations which had taken place. There were nearly fifty members present, and they unanimously endorsed the action taken by Mr. Lloyd George. It need not be anticipated, therefore, that many members of the party will cross the floor of the House, though it is possible that some of them may decide not to stand again in view of the altered conditions. Up to a late hour last night there had been no further communication between the Prime Minister and Lord Birkenhead and Mr. Austen Chamberlain, so that the question of their co-operation still remains open.

There is no doubt that the immediate inclusion of Mr. Austen Chamberlain in the Ministry would be generally welcomed, but equally there is no disguising the fact that all the Prime Minister's colleagues are not in favour of Lord Birkenhead's inclusion at this juncture. They argue that his recent rectorial address in Glasgow created an unfortunate impression in the minds of many electors. On the other hand, there is in many quarters a strong desire that Lord Birkenhead should assist the Government in its battle in Lancashire, particularly if Mr. Winston Churchill contests a Manchester seat.

CLAIM AGAINST THE CROWN.

IRISH RAILWAY COMPANY'S PETITION.

The hearing was begun in the King's Bench Division, London, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Rowlatt, of a petition of right presented against the Crown by the Great Southern and Western Railway Company of Ireland, whose offices are at Kingsbridge terminus, Dublin.

Sir John Simon, K.C., for the suppliants, stated that in March, 1917, as the result of a meeting at the Board of Trade, it was agreed that, in consideration of suppliants taking up rails and sleepers on their lines between Athy and Carlow, and transferring them to the Board of Trade for making a railway between Athy and Wolfhill Collieries, the Board of Trade would pay the cost of replacement and of alterations to stations at Athy, Mageney and Carlow, necessitated by the working of the system as a single, instead of a double, line. It was further agreed in a similar way that rails should be taken up between Athy and Cherryville Junction, and used for a line to Castlecomer, and that the Board of Trade should pay the cost of replacement and of alterations to stations at Cherryville, Kildangan and Athy. The suppliants duly performed the agreements, but the Crown had denied liability, and it was now pleaded that, by virtue of the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, and the Provisional Government (Transfer of Functions) Order, the liability was transferred to the Ministry of Economic Affairs of the Provisional Government of Ireland.

Sir John Simon said that he would contend that no Irish legislation could intervene to take away the liability of agreements made with a British official department. There was also a plea by the Crown that the lines had not been relaid, but counsel contended that the claim was in no way premature, as the suppliants' rights under the agreement had fully accrued.

The hearing was adjourned.

FORMER DUKE OF CUMBERLAND SERIOUSLY ILL.

VIENNA, Tuesday.

A telegram to the Neue Freie Presse from Gmunden, the family seat of the Brunswick Lueneburg family, states that the Duke Ernest of Brunswick, formerly known as the Duke of Cumberland, has had a stroke of apoplexy, and that his condition is grave. The Duke's English title was taken from him during the war.—(Reuter.)

DISSOLUTION.

PROTESTS IN THE COMMONS.

MR. LAW'S DEATH.

TRIBUTES FROM ALL PARTIES.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday.

Although members came back to Westminster to-day knowing that the present House of Commons was under sentence of death, they displayed a cheery and occasionally an obstreperous demeanour. Floor and galleries were well filled with members, who greeted and chaffed one another with great heartiness until the time came for prayers.

Much curiosity was aroused by Lord Ednam's appearance in a wonderful embroidered yellow and black garment—half waistcoat, half jumper. He has lately had an accident and broken his collar-bone, and this was his way of advertising his injury and preventing his fellow-members from bumping into him.

Shortly after three o'clock the Prime Minister came in, amid salvoes of applause from his followers, which caused a Labour member to advise them to "cheer on December 6" (the anticipated date for the election). The cheers and counter-cheers were renewed when the brothers Chamberlain took their respective places, and again when Mr. Asquith entered from behind the Speaker's chair, to be followed a few moments later by Mr. Lloyd George, who, however, entered by way of the Bar.

After an interlude during which the three members elected during the adjournment took their seats (which they will have to resign on Friday), Mr. Baldwin rose to pronounce a eulogy on Mr. Bonar Law—"a very great leader." The Prime Minister made no attempt at exalted oratory, but his speech was full of intimate personal touches, such as his account of Mr. Law's courage during the air raids, and these went right home to the heart of the House.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald followed with a rather more ceremonial tribute, but admirably phrased and obviously sincere. "A man of conspicuous loyalty to his convictions, a dependable friend, and an upright opponent," was his description of the dead statesman. Mr. Asquith referred to his unique powers of debate. "He leaves behind him an unstained record and a gap in our ranks which it will be difficult, if not impossible, to fill."

Recalling the storms they had weathered in company during the war, Mr. Lloyd George said that no one could wish for a more loyal, steadfast, and sagacious shipmate—"even his pessimism was attractive." Mr. T. P. O'Connor, as the sole survivor of the Nationalist Party, added his tribute to "an honest opponent."

The note of controversy was soon heard after the Prime Minister had announced his advice to the Crown to dissolve Parliament on Friday next. The only business to be taken (by arrangement with the Leader of the Opposition) would be the Workmen's Compensation Bill, followed on Thursday by a debate on the virtual vote of censure, of which Mr. Macdonald had given notice.

Mr. Pringle drew attention to the unexampled and unconstitutional situation by which the Premier and the Labour Leader had deprived Parliament of its right of criticism, and thereby fell foul of Mr. Macdonald's henchmen, who made the rest of his speech almost inaudible with their running comments. A racy little speech followed from Mr. Jack Jones, who began by observing "I am not a lawyer, therefore I cannot tell the truth," and went on to say that he was in favour of Protection—(Conservative cheers)—"but not your sort of Protection."

Mr. Asquith echoed Mr. Pringle's protest, but more politely, whereupon Mr. Austen Chamberlain called attention to the ridiculous spectacle of an Opposition leader denouncing a Government for appealing to the country. Labour's comment on Mr. Chamberlain's intervention was "You'll get a job all right."

Sir Alfred Mond started off with a great attack upon the Government policy of "canned lobsters and currants," but very soon he, too, came in for Labour's gibes, and, after roaring like a lion, he ended by bleating like a lamb.

With the knowledge that, whatever happened in the meantime, the dissolution was inevitable on Friday, members took but a languid interest in the Workmen's Compensation Bill, which was the one measure which the Government deemed necessary to carry before an appeal to the country.

The answers to the few questions which were put after the House had met occupied only a short time.

Sir R. Sanders informed Mr. Graham White that the number of Canadian cattle landed in Great Britain from April 1st to October 31st was 33,044, of which 26,144 were consigned as store cattle.

GOVERNMENT MOTION.

LIBERAL AND LABOUR PROTESTS.

Mr. Baldwin then moved his procedure motion. His speech will be found, in the election news on page 5.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, who followed, said that under the circumstances he would not oppose the Government motion. He and his party wished to see the Workmen's Compensation Bill placed on the Statute Book, and they would help in the progress of that measure. They could discuss the more controversial questions of the Government policy on Thursday.

Dr. Macnamara said that he wished to know whether an opportunity would be given on Thursday of discussing in detail the Government schemes for finding work for the unemployed this winter.

Mr. Pringle said that he thought the situation was without parallel. The official leader of the Opposition was consenting to his own suicide, without attempting to secure any discussion of the conditions under which his life was to be brought to an end. There ought to be a full Parliamentary discussion of the reasons for the election, which was now inevitable, and one day was wholly inadequate for that purpose. The House and the country should be told what the Government policy was.

Mr. J. Jones said that the Labour Party was out to fight the issue. The question of Free Trade versus Protection was a d from discussing the matter at adequate length, was an indication that the Government were afraid—(loud Opposition cheers)—to expose their policy to full and free discussion on the platform and on the floor of the House. (Opposition cheers.) What killed the Protectionist movement of twenty years ago was full and free discussion, and he had no doubt that the present movement would succumb, and finally, to a similar process. (Opposition cheers.)

The course proposed by the Government was universally condemned by the whole business world. It was paralysing business, and depressing not only the Stock Exchange, but all those who were entering into commitments of any sort or kind, and that from a Government which came into office on the plea of tranquillity. (Hear, hear.) He could see no other motive for such a profound and disastrous disturbance of the whole social and commercial life of the country than the desire to coerce the electors into a premature and uninformed decision on the Government proposals. (Opposition cheers.) Why should Parliament be dissolved on Friday? Surely, on an issue so vital to the prosperity of the country the decision could easily be deferred a week later. He protested against this attempt to rush a decision and curtail discussion in the House as one of the greatest outrages he had ever known in our constitutional history. (Opposition cheers.)

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S REPLY.

Mr. Chamberlain said that Mr. Asquith must know that the Prime Minister had no choice but to appeal to the country at the earliest possible moment. After the Plymouth speech no honest man could continue to be responsible for the Government of the country without seeking the authority of the country to carry out his policy. It was impossible for any Government to continue the business of the country satisfactorily in a House of Commons that was under sentence of Parliamentary extinction. (Ministerial cheers.) It was the duty of the Government, having regard to their own credit, and the interests of the country to take the decision as quickly as possible. (Ministerial cheers.)

CANNED LOBSTER AND CURRANTS.

Sir A. Mond congratulated the Government on the accession of Mr. Austen Chamberlain. It was an unexampled situation, and on an issue of such importance to the commerce and prosperity of the country the House of Commons was to have no opportunity of challenging Ministers on the floor of the House, and calling upon them to explain what their wonderful scheme was. (Hear, hear.) They were to be presented with a pig in a poke, and were not to be told whether duties were to be imposed only on canned lobster and currants, or whether the duties were to be on a wider scale.

Sir John Butcher asked the Prime Minister to give facilities to the Pensions Bill.

Sir John Simon contended that the reason why the Government had fixed on December 6 as the date of the election rather than a week later was because of their desire to shut out any explanation of their proposals from the House of Commons. (Opposition cheers.) The declarations of Ministers were in flagrant contradiction of each other. He asked whether they were going to get before Parliament was dissolved a businesslike statement as to the range of the imposts duties which the Prime Minister thought was the only cure for unemployment. (Hear, hear.)

MR. BALDWIN'S PROMISE.

Mr. Baldwin, replying on the discussion, said that he would take care that one of the Ministers gave full information about work for the unemployed this winter. The debate bore a strong family resemblance to previous debates. There was a similar debate in 1910.

Mr. Pringle—The bill on which the election of 1910 took place was already in express terms before the House and country.

Mr. Baldwin said that what he meant was that charges were then hurled against the Government for bringing to an untimely end a Parliament which had lasted only twelve months. He had given all the available time that he had, instead of doing what he had the power to do—dissolve at once—because he was anxious to get the Workmen's Compensation Bill and have a full day's discussion. He did not think that the country was quite so uninstructed or illiterate as Sir John Simon would have them suppose. He would give the House as much information as he was able on Thursday.

The House divided, and the motion was carried by 279 to 90.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS.

The Workmen's Compensation Bill, as amended in Committee, was considered on report.

The Home Secretary moved a new clause giving power to review weekly payments of compensation for an injury at the request either of the workman or of the employer in cases where there had been fluctuations in the rate of remuneration by more than 20 per cent.

The clause was agreed to.

The Home Secretary moved a new clause enabling partial incapacity to be treated as total incapacity in certain cases.

The clause, with some minor amendment, was agreed to.

Mr. Tom Smith moved a clause raising the minimum compensation in fatal cases from £150 to £250.

Mr. Bridgeman eventually agreed to the minimum being raised to £200, and in this form the clause was carried.

A SMALL MAJORITY.

On a clause moved by Mr. T. Griffiths extending the Act to "any disease or affliction of the eye attributable to or aggravated by the employment," the Government majority fell to 11, the number voting for the clause being 176 to 167 against.

On Clause 2, which increases the amount payable in respect of children left by a workman who had been killed, Mr. T. Smith moved an amendment fixing the minimum sum at 3s. per week per child.

Mr. Bridgeman accepted the amendment, which was agreed to.

Mr. Gavan Duffy moved an amendment to Clause 3 providing that an injured workman shall receive two-thirds of his average earnings instead of one-half as compensation.

The Home Secretary said that he was bound to resist the amendment, because it would put much too serious a charge on industry in present circumstances.

Mr. J. H. Thomas supported the amendment, remarking that if the Government's new policy came into effect there would be an increase in the cost of living. (Ministerial cries of "No.")

The amendment was defeated by 205 votes to 160.

The debate was adjourned, and the House adjourned at 11.6.

BEAUTIFUL BLOOMS.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW AT MERRION ROAD.

Large numbers attended the exhibition of chrysanthemums in aid of Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, which opened yesterday at The Moorings, Merrion road, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Good. A fine display of beautiful blooms is provided. Amongst the large exhibition varieties the deep velvety crimson of the "Mrs. Munro" variety, the chestnut bronze of the "Edith Cavell," the golden amber of "Majestic," and the delicately-shaded shell pink "General Petain" stand out prominently.

All varieties are staged in the centre house. Here there is a mass of bloom and a wealth of colour which charm the eye. Single varieties, so popular for cutting, are a feature in themselves. Some of the most notable are "Donald," a pale blush pink; "Phyllis Cooper," a beautiful golden yellow; "Queen Alexandra," a lovely pink, and "Vivian Morel," a light mauve pink.

The show is remarkable, considering the character of the season, and, apart from the worthy object for which it is held generously, is worthy of a visit. It will remain open until Saturday.

CHOTA NAGPUR MISSION.

"A sale of work in aid of the funds of the Dublin University Mission to Chota Nagpur, will be held in the Molesworth Hall, Molesworth street, Dublin, this and to-morrow afternoons from one to six o'clock. Luncheon will be served.

THE PRISONERS.

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY RESOLUTION.

CONVOCATION CALLS FOR RELEASES.

There was an animated discussion at the meeting in Dublin of Convocation of the National University of Ireland last evening, when the following resolution was proposed by Professor Arthur E. Clery, LL.D.:—

"That we associate ourselves with the other public bodies of the country in calling for the release of all political prisoners, including the Chancellor of the University, and many distinguished graduates."

Professor Clery declared that he had no desire to propose the resolution in strong and bitter language, and he certainly had no wish to increase the bitterness which existed at the present time. The feeling of every ordinary man or woman was that a return to normal life was necessary. Why was the normal life absent from Ireland? He ventured to say that it was owing to the enormous number of political prisoners in jail without trial. The Government maintained its majority by keeping the other members of the House out of it. That introduced a new system of politics, and the voice of the constituency could not be heard in the ordinary manner. There would be no permanent peace or happiness in Ireland until the prisoners were released. The question of their release bore the same relation to Ireland as did the Ruhr problem to the rest of Europe. In Ireland the people had lost somewhat their sense of humanity, as compared with that sense in other countries.

Miss Mary O'Kelly seconded the resolution.

AN AMENDMENT.

Mr. Tierney moved that Convocation proceed to the next business. He wished to prevent any bitterness or miserable squabbling interfering with their personal relations in the University. It had been one of the small comforts that one had during the last two years of miserable strife to reflect that within the University men and women could associate without paying attention to the political bitterness outside. Convocation had, during past years, carried on the business proper to the graduates of the University. It had not been disturbed by the logic of the street; it had done its own business, and had done it well. Convocation had never discussed general politics.

A Voice—It did.

Mr. Tierney said that if Professor Clery and Miss O'Kelly were anxious for the preservation of peace in the University, they would not intrude on the life of the University matter which did not concern it. "If your body passes this resolution," he said, "you are going in the teeth of the majority of the electors of the National University."

Mr. O'Duffy seconded the amendment. He supported it because he did not wish to have any acerbity in the University.

FEMALE MEMBERS' OPINIONS.

Miss McGrane declared that there were a number of graduates and students of the University in jail, and she considered that it would be very inhuman to pass by the resolution.

Miss Agnes O'Farrelly stated that it was quite unnecessary to introduce the resolution there. It could do the prisoners no good, but, on the other hand, it would do the University a great deal of harm.

Miss Mary Hayden supported this view.

The amendment was put to the meeting and lost.

A long discussion on the resolution followed. Mr. O'Duffy was told that he had been speaking too often, and he, in return, declared that the majority were out to deprive them of free speech.

The resolution was put to the meeting and declared carried.

Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington—With the Publicity Department of the Free State dissenting.

UNIVERSITY FINANCE.

Mr. Tierney proposed—"That the representatives of the University in the Dail be requested to procure the annual publication, in a cheap and accessible form, of a full statement as to University finance in Ireland, showing for each composite institution (1) capital values in buildings, lands, and permanent equipment; (2) yearly income of all kinds, and its sources; (3) yearly expenditure, and its details as to salaries and otherwise; (4) actual attendance of University students with their faculties, their standing, and the fees charged them."

Miss Agnes O'Farrelly seconded.

Mr. Tierney declared that within the next few years it would be decided whether the University would be a National University or whether it would sink to the status of a subordinate University. For that reason it was absolutely necessary that such information as was detailed in the resolution should be at their disposal.

The resolution was amended, the words "University finance in Ireland" being altered to University finance in Saorstat Eireann and Northern Ireland."

The amended resolution was then passed.

ALLEGATIONS IN WEXFORD.

At a special meeting of Wexford County Council a communication was received from the Wexford Prisoners' Defence Committee stating that after a public meeting held on Wednesday night of last week the gathering, accompanied by a waggonette, proceeded to the County Hall and recited prayers for the political prisoners. On their return the waggonette was attacked and one of the occupants was assaulted.

PRISONERS RELEASED.

Our Newbridge Correspondent states that the Mayor of Sligo was unconscious on Monday night, and that Brian O'Higgins was delirious. Thirty-four prisoners were released from the Curragh and Newbridge yesterday, many of whom were from Dublin.

DEATH OF AN INTERNED PRISONER.

A County Wexford prisoner, named Hume, who was interned at Tintown, Curragh Camp, died there on Sunday. He was not on hunger-strike, but had been in hospital since 28th September. The immediate cause of death was pernicious anæmia.

VOLUNTEER NURSES.

Miss Geraldine O'Donel, 24 Eccles street, Dublin, on the 9th inst. wrote to General Mulcahy asking for permission for a certain number of nurses who had volunteered to nurse prisoners on hunger-strike, to enter prisons to carry out this work.

General Mulcahy has telegraphed a reply stating:—"It is not proposed to accept offer."

Mrs. Despard and Madam Gonne MacBride, on behalf of the Prisoners' Defence Society, have addressed a letter to General G. O'Sullivan, Adjutant-General, pointing out the difficulty which arises in dealing with prisoners released from internment, owing to the Prisoners' Defence Society not receiving any previous notice. They ask that they may be informed in advance as to the number arriving on trains, so that they may be able to look after them.

MASONIC ORPHAN BOYS.

The half-yearly meeting of the Board of Governors of the Masonic Orphan Boys' School was held at the schoolhouse, Clonskeagh, on Tuesday, when the report of the scrutineers of the ballot for the admission of nine pupils from the following list of candidates was read:—

William A. Aiken, Francis Beamish, Eric W. Bell, William G. Best, Robert H. Bloomer, James A. Brown, William H. Donaldson, Charles F. K. Hackett, George Kilroe, John D. Knox, James McIlhagger, Hugh D. McMeekin, Gordon T. Myles, Desmond O'Neill, Geoffrey T. Rae, Sylvester G. Sparrow, Roland G. Taylor, Edward S. Thornton, Thomas G. Thornton, William Walker, Robert W. Whyte, John C. Wilson.

It was unanimously resolved that the nine candidates who obtained the highest number of votes be elected. Accordingly, Sylvester G. Sparrow (6,580), Geoffrey T. Rae (6,361), John C. Wilson (7,977), William Walker (5,924), Robert W. Whyte (5,749), Hugh D. McMeekin (5,053), Gordon T. Myles (4,372), Edward S. Thornton (4,313), James A. Brown (4,218) were declared duly elected pupils of the school.

It is announced in Paris that two regular air services will shortly be running in Cochin-China, the first between Saigon and the Western districts, and the second between Saigon and Prom-Penh.

PRIVATE BILL PROCEDURE.

STANDING ORDERS OF SENATE AND DAIL.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The Joint Committee on Private Bill Procedure, which was set up by a resolution of the Dail on October 3rd, and of which Lord Glenavy is Chairman, has presented its report, which consists of draft Standing Orders of the Senate and the Dail.

Every bill promoted for the particular interest or benefit of any person or that interferes with the private property of any person, otherwise than in the interests of the public generally, and as a measure of public policy, shall be treated as a private bill.

There shall be an officer of the Oireachtas, to be called "The Examiner of Private Bills," hereinafter called the "Examiner," who shall be appointed by the Ceann Comhairle of the Dail and the Cathaoirleach of the Seanad jointly, and shall be paid such remuneration as they, with the consent of the Minister of Finance, shall approve. In all cases where application is intended to be made for leave to bring in a private bill (other than Citizenship, Estate and Name Bills), notice shall be given stating the main objects of such intended application, and the time at which copies of the bill will be deposited in the Private Bill Office, and such notice shall be subscribed with the name and address of the person, company, corporation, or firm by whom the application is to be made, and shall, in the months of October and November, or either of them, immediately preceding the application for a bill, but not later than the twenty-seventh day of November, be published once in the Iris Oifigiuil and once in each of two successive weeks, with an interval between such publications of not less than six clear days, in some newspaper or newspapers published or circulating in the area to which the application relates.

NOTICE TO OWNERS AND OCCUPIERS.

On or before the fifteenth day of December immediately preceding the application for a bill for power to take any lands, or houses compulsorily or for compulsory user of the same, or for an extension of the time granted by any former Act for that purpose, or to impose an improvement charge on any lands or houses, or to render any lands or houses liable to the imposition of an improvement charge, notice, in writing, of the application shall be given to the owners or reputed owners, lessees or reputed lessees, and occupiers of all such lands and houses, and such notice shall be, as nearly as may be, in the form set forth in the Appendix B to these Orders.

The 15th of December immediately preceding the application for a bill is the latest date named in nearly all cases as that upon which public notice must be given by the promoters; and the notices must be published and served in duplicate—one in Irish and the other English, and shall be served either by delivering the same personally to the party entitled to such notice, or leaving it at his usual place of abode, or with his agent or solicitor.

On or before the twenty-first day of December printed copies of the bill shall be deposited at the Ministries of Finance, Home Affairs, Local Government, Industry and Commerce, Agriculture, Education and Fisheries, and at the General Post Office; and on or before the 31st of December the estimate for any work required by the Standing Orders shall be deposited in the Private Bill Office, and with the principal officer of the Ministry of Local Government, or of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce, as the case may require.

Arrangements are made as to proceedings in the House on a private bill prior to its being referred to a committee; bills promoted by companies and local authorities; charitable or educational institutions.

HOUSES OF THE WORKING CLASSES.

In the case of every bill which gives, revives, or extends power to take land compulsorily or by agreement, clauses shall be inserted providing that the promoters shall not, in the exercise of such power, purchase or acquire, in any local area, any house or houses occupied, either wholly or partially, by thirty or more persons belonging to the working class, as tenants or lodgers, unless and until they shall have obtained the approval of the central authority to a scheme for providing new dwellings for the persons residing in such houses, or for such number or proportion of such persons as the central authority shall, after inquiry, deem necessary, having regard to the number of persons residing in the houses liable to be taken, and working within one mile therefrom and to the amount of vacant suitable accommodation in the immediate neighbourhood of the houses liable to be taken, or to the place of employment of such persons, and all the other circumstances of the case; and they shall have given security to the central authority for the carrying out of the scheme.

PARLIAMENTARY AGENTS.

No person shall be allowed to act as a Parliamentary agent except a solicitor of five years' standing and duly qualified and entitled to practise as such solicitor in the Courts of the Saorstat Eireann. Every such solicitor shall subscribe a declaration before one of the clerks in the Private Bill Office, and after having subscribed such declaration, and entered into a recognisance or bond (if hereafter required) in the penal sum of £500, with two sureties of £250 each, to observe the said declaration, such person, if in other respects qualified to act as hereinafter provided, shall be registered in a book to be kept in the Private Bill Office, and shall then be entitled to act as a Parliamentary agent; provided that upon the said declaration, recognisance, or bond, and registry, no fee shall be payable.

The fee to be paid on deposit of a bill, plans or any other document is £5, and for every day on which the Examiner shall inquire into the compliance with the Standing Orders, £5. The fees for proceedings in the Senate are £5 each for the first, second, fourth and fifth stage, and in the Dail £15 on the fourth stage and £5 on the fifth, in the case of bills referred to Joint Committee.

In the case of bills referred to a Special Committee the fees in both Senate and Dail are £5 on each of the four stages.

For proceedings before any Committee, if the promoters of the bill appear by counsel, £10 per day; if they appear without counsel, £5 per day. Then there are smaller fees to be paid by opponents of a private bill, and for proceedings before the Examiner.

For every day on which the Examiner shall inquire into any memorial complaining of non-compliance with the Standing Orders, £3, and for every day on which the Joint Committee on Standing Orders shall inquire into any appeal against the decision of the Examiner that the Standing Orders have been complied with, £3.

It is held that by fixing the responsibility on one man for each of these departments, the work would be done better. The Commissioners would be selected from the members of the Council.

UNION CHAPLAINS' SALARIES.—Mayo Board of Health has been informed by the Ministry for Local Government that the average salary paid to Roman Catholic chaplains of county homes and hospitals is £115 a year, and in only four cases is a higher sum paid. KING'S COUNTY ASSIZES TOWN.—A Commissioner appointed under the Dail Eireann Courts Winding-up Act sat in Tullamore on Monday to dispose of the business for King's County. Birr solicitors wrote asking for a sitting in Birr, stating that it was awkward for clients and solicitors to attend in Tullamore. The Commissioner said that they went to the Assizes in Tullamore under the old régime, and there was no reason why they should not do so now.

OUTSTANDING RATES.—Some months ago rates due to the Clare County Council amounted to £204,000. Now the amount outstanding is £47,000. Twenty-four of the 32 collectors have closed the first moiety of the current rates. No collector has closed the second moiety. These figures were announced at a meeting of the Clare County Council, at which all the collectors were ordered to close their collections by November 21.

CLARE COUNTY COUNCIL AFFAIRS.—Clare County Council has passed a resolution requesting the Government to hold a sworn inquiry into the administration of the Council and its committees. It is proposed to hold the inquiry on December 12. At the meeting at which this resolution was passed members complained that false charges had been made—"They have charged us," said one member, "with being robbers, bottle-wreckers, and a dozen other things"—and that the honour of the members had been impugned. This inquiry would give their accusers an opportunity of stating their cases in public; members should attend and prove that the Council had always acted honestly.

NON-EFFECTIVE COUNCIL.—Clare Co. Council has requested the Ministry for Local Government to dissolve Meelick District Council on the ground that it is not functioning.

COUNTY SURVEYOR'S PENSION.—A pension of £685 a year has been awarded by the Clare County Council to Mr. P. L. K. Dobbin, ex-County Surveyor, subject to sanction by the Local Government Department.

MONAGHAN COUNTY HOME.—At a meeting of Monaghan County Home Committee in Ballybay yesterday a letter was read from the Minister for Home Affairs stating that he had approved of the proposal to move the Home from Monaghan to Castleblayney, that a county hospital would be established at Monaghan and a district hospital at Carrickmacross. Mr. Thomas Toal, Chairman of Monaghan County Council, characterised the scheme as "rotten, unsatisfactory, and brought about by the working of some secret influence." He said that a very appropriate sign over the entrance door of the new Home would be: "Anyone entering here there is no hope for them." The meeting adopted a resolution asking that a district hospital should be established in Clones.

The direct Dublin-Gothenburg steamer service has been resumed. The Jura arrived in the Liffey yesterday with a general cargo.

Mr. Hedley Roberts, aged 25, a traveller, was found dead in his office at 14 Dawson street, Dublin, yesterday. Death was due to natural causes. He was a native of Oxford.

Professor O'Sullivan, M.P., will lecture on "Phases of Revolution," at 5 Rutland square, Dublin, this evening, at 8, under the auspices of the Cumann na nGaedheal.

Carrick-on-Shannon and Drumshambo Branch of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation has adopted a resolution, thanking the Dublin and provincial Press for the support it has given to the protests of the teachers against the proposed "cut" in their salaries.

Mr. T. J. Hayes, manager of the branch of the National Bank of Gorey for the last six years, has been appointed manager of the Tipperary branch, where he was sub-manager for eleven years prior to his transfer to Gorey.

The death has occurred of Mrs. Anne Byrne, Springfield, Mountluce, Philipstown, at the age of 93 years. Just before her death she remarked that God was very good to her to take her before the old age pension was reduced.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

UNANSWERED POLICE KNOCKS.—Alexander McAllister, publican, Milltown, was fined 20s., without endorsement, at Portadown, for failing to admit the police to his house at midnight on October 31. Police knocked and demanded admission for one and a half hours, but there was no response, and they had to go away without being able to search the premises. The defence was that it was customary to knock at doors on Hallowe'en night. The occupiers did not know that the police were there. The defendant said that he was a sound sleeper, and never heard the knocking, until his wife woke him, and told him about it.

SEAFORDE RECTORY FIRE.—In the Northern King's Bench the appeal brought by Canon J. G. Pooler, Rector of Seaforde, against the decision of the lower Court, dismissing his claim for £1,100 compensation for the burning of furniture at the rectory, on the ground that it was not malicious, was allowed. The Judge said that he was of opinion that the applicant had discharged the onus of proof that was on him, and was entitled to recover. It was explained that the parties had agreed to fix the amount on a subsequent day.

HAND-KNITTING PROWESS.—In a knitting competition organised in London, Miss Isabel Hewitt, of Teghnavin, Lurgan, tied with two others for the second prize, and has received a gold medal and £50. Miss Hewitt has been a regular and successful competitor at Lurgan, Portadown, and other provincial shows.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE SENATE'S PRAYER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Before the wording of the Senate's opening prayer is finally settled it is to be hoped that further consideration may be given to it, and that persons of discretion and experience, if not authority, in such a matter will be consulted. The form set out in your issue to-day reflects rawness, sentimentality and untidiness of mind as a mirror does fly-marks. Peace, justice, truth, religion and piety are to be prayed for. Is this not topsy-turvy? Where are the bounds between truth and justice, between religion and piety?

Peace, sought here in the first place, is not the forerunner or the foundation of public or private virtue; it is a consequence and a reward. Logically, it should be set last, not first; for if, as we are told, there goes reason to the breaking of eggs, ought not our Senate also to use it in its prayer? Besides, it should be considered whether, in this connection, it is not rather concord that is to be desired than peace. When the lion lies down with the lamb there will be peace, but not necessarily concord.

Justice, undoubtedly, should take foremost place as the fundamental virtue for public authorities. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His justice, and all these things shall be added unto you." And if to justice the Senate joins prudence, fortitude and temperance with charity, it will be a pattern of legislative excellence. Truth, religion and piety will meet it hand in hand, and, as Bernard of Morlaix sang long ago, "Pax erit illa fidelibus, pax sine rixa."

The Senate would do well to be content with the simplicity and austere dignity of some ancient formula, such as "Actiones nostras," known as well to Protestants as to Catholics in the archaic "Prevent, O Lord." A more modern version would be: "Go Thou, O Lord, before our undertakings inspiring them, and follow after them aiding them, that all we say and all we do may ever begin with Thee and, thus begun, through Thee may have its end." What more can the Senate need?—Yours, etc.,

THE STATE AND DISEASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter you publish to-day from Dr. Moorhead clearly points out the need for financial assistance to enable the clinical hospitals to supply insulin to the poor patients suffering from diabetes. The importance of providing funds for this purpose is very evident to all medical men. It is unfortunate that Dr. Moorhead should, in an otherwise excellent letter, make the following statement:—"I assert that so long as the State is willing to pay for the cure of venereal disease, which admittedly is for the most part acquired by non-social practices, it should also help in providing the cost of the remedy, insulin, for a disease which is a misfortune, not a fault." Fear that this statement, coming from Dr. Moorhead, may create adverse public criticism of an expenditure for the treatment of a disease, the facts of which the general public may not be familiar with, induces me to write this letter. The object of the free "treatment centres" for venereal diseases, which were established in so many towns throughout the world, is not merely to benefit the individual who has contracted the disease, but to render the victim free from infection in the shortest possible time, so that the disease may not be distributed broadcast to innocent members of the community—a very real danger—and also that the prevalence of venereal diseases may be diminished, with a considerable saving to the State, by an improvement in the health of the community, and a reduction in the numbers maintained in the mental asylums and blind institutions.

The expenditure for the treatment of venereal diseases appears to be fully justified from a public health point of view. Let us hope that in future more money may be available for the treatment of tuberculosis, providing milk free from tubercle bacilli for children, and that insulin and other valuable remedies may be brought within the reach of the poor members of the community who seek assistance at our clinical hospitals.—Yours, etc.,

PREMIUM BONDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Perhaps, as I have advocated both publicly and privately a Government borrowing on Premium Bonds, I may be permitted to answer Mr. Eason's question—"What is to be gained, therefore, by such an issue?" The advantages to be gained comprise:—

(i.) A wide basis of popular support for the loan: Premium Bonds will tap supplies of money which no other form of borrowing will elicit.

(ii.) An enhancement of the national credit due to a successful loan on cheaper terms (to the Government) than would be possible with any other form of borrowing.

(iii.) A certain stabilisation for our new political institutions due to (i.) and (ii.).

(iv.) The probability of being able to finance out of our own domestic resources the total capital requirements of our National Exchequer, thus avoiding intrigues and entanglements with foreign financiers and their agents, both secret and avowed.

(v.) The encouragement of thrift and the creation of a large class of small investors.

If I admit Mr. Eason's proposition that the Government cannot rely on Premium Bonds to cover the whole ground, the evidence collected elsewhere proves that the more old-fashioned system of borrowing also fails to cover the whole ground. The two systems can be utilised, the one as the complement of the other. It appears likely that the Government will try the more old-fashioned method first, but I believe that they would have got cheaper money and a more buoyant market for their wares had they begun with Premium Bonds.

Mr. Eason prefers Savings Certificates to Premium Bonds from the point of view of thrift. The Savings Certificates offer truly admirable facilities for thrift to those who have formed a habit of saving. Premium Bonds, on the other hand, offer not merely facilities, but positive inducements or incitements to thrift. The hope that "springs eternal" will supply the driving force behind Premium Bonds, while the Savings Certificates have no motive power but good advice to push them. It is better that fifty thousand should be guided into thrift by optimism, speculation or a belief in destiny, than that a mere handful—and no more—should be shepherded into thrift by moral precepts.—Yours, etc.,

THE FREE STATE LOAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Permit me, as a possible investor in the forthcoming Free State Loan, to suggest to the Government the advisability of giving an undertaking that the currency will not be in any way altered for a period of, say, at least ten years. This would give an additional feeling of security to investors and would assist the issue of the Loan.—Yours, etc.,

THE DISHORNING OF CATTLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It is high time that something were done to put a stop to the terrible cruelties which are being inflicted on cattle by the barbarous practice of dishorning. The law, I believe, formerly allowed the practice, provided that it was carried out by a veterinary surgeon under an anæsthetic; but now the poor brutes are tethered and bound, thrown on the ground, and their horns are sawn off deep into the head, causing great suffering, as proved by their agonising roars.

This cruel practice is carried out by individuals who can have no feelings for the sufferings of dumb animals. I have made various enquiries as to why cattle are dishorned, and am told that it is done because it puts on at least £1 to their value, and also prevents their injuring one another in the cattle trucks. I met a herd of some twenty-five cattle a while ago, being driven on the road. They had just been dishorned; their condition was pitiable, their heads bespattered with blood, and the poor brutes were evidently in great pain from shock on account of what they had gone through.

Cannot the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals move in the matter and obtain some legislation? The Civic Guard might be directed to report all cases coming under their notice.—Yours, etc.,

THE COLLEGE OF SCIENCE.

GOVERNMENT URGED TO VACATE BUILDINGS.

STUDENTS HEAVILY HANDICAPPED.

At a meeting of the College of Science Association, held at 86 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, last night, Mr. A. C. Cosbie, A.B.C.Sc.I., presiding,

A resolution was submitted by Mr. M'Cafferey protesting against the continued occupation of the College by the Government departments, which should be housed elsewhere, and calling upon the Government immediately to restore the College to its legitimate uses in the permanent interests of technical instruction and industrial development.

Mr. M'Cafferey said that it was an opportune moment for bringing up the question of re-opening the College of Science. They had tried in vain to get the Government to realise that the College of Science must be opened. The military necessity for the occupation of the College no longer existed. It was being used as Government offices, but the Government should be able to find offices elsewhere.

Mr. Gillies seconded, declaring that it was essential that the College should be re-opened without delay.

The resolution was adopted.

THE DEAN'S REPORT.

Professor F. B. Hackett, Dean of the College, then submitted his report, which stated that the work of the College was carried on at present in some eight buildings scattered over the city, including University College, the Veterinary College, Ballsbridge; the Albert College, Glasnevin; and the Industrial Annexe, Grand Canal Bank. The mechanical Engineering Laboratories were opened to the students last January. It was not until June that admission to the Electrical Engineering Laboratory was sanctioned.

The staff and students were under great obligations for the accommodation which had been given to them, but the best available fell short of the equipment lying idle in the College. Advanced students were still deprived of an important part of their training—namely, access to the valuable College library of applied science. From the student's point of view conditions were much worse than last year.

The present arrangements involved quite an unjustifiable strain on the energies of the staff and students. Their own laboratories could be placed at their disposal without any departure from the principle on which students are admitted at present to the College building.

Professor O'Rahilly, T.D., forwarded a resolution from the Academic Council of Cork University, requesting the Government to establish a Commission to inquire into the status, functions, and inter-relation of University Colleges and the College of Science.

Mr. Mellon said that there seemed to be a suggestion that the University College and the College of Science should be amalgamated. That would not benefit education or the State.

"AN EDUCATIONAL ENTITY."

Mr. Wordsworth proposed a resolution expressing the opinion of the Association that the conservation of the College of Science as an educational entity is essential for the progress and development of applied science in the Irish Free State.

The College of Science had always been closely associated with the scientific services of the Government, which had increased considerably. The Patents Office, the National Physical Laboratory, and similar institutions were no longer at the service of the Government. The College was the only institution in the Free State having the equipment necessary to perform portion of the scientific work which must be done in the country. The re-opening of the College was a matter of great urgency which could not be shelved indefinitely.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Mellon and adopted.

NEW OFFICERS.

Mr. T. P. Gill was elected President of the Association for the ensuing year, and the following were elected Vice-Presidents:—Mrs. Stopford Green, Dr. J. F. Crowley and Dr. W. E. Adeney.

LABOUR AND THE HUNGER-STRIKERS.

In regard to Mr. Thomas Johnson's letter to the Irish Times, in which he defined Labour's attitude towards the political prisoners' hunger strike, Mr. David R. Kent writes that he and Mrs. Kent interviewed Mr. Johnson as delegates officially appointed by the Ard Fheis. Mr. Kent adds that he would not have been in favour of the hunger strike if it had been declared for political reasons. He urges Mr. Johnson to move in the Free State Parliament a resolution demanding the release of the prisoners.

Mr. C. Cahalan writes from 94 Middle Abbey street, Dublin, that he was present at the meeting of the National Executive of the Irish Labour Party at which the deputation was received, and contradicts Mr. Johnson's statement that Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington's account of the interview is incomplete and misleading.

RANELAGH CONCERT.

A very enjoyable and interesting concert was given in aid of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides at the Sandford Parochial Hall, Ranelagh, last night. There was a good attendance, and an acceptable musical programme was presented by Miss Florence Burke, Miss Eleanor Reddy, Miss Ivy Furlong, Miss Lilian Whittaker, Mr. William Lewin, Mr. J. Mackay, and Rev. W. N. Harvey. The Rev. C. R. Caffry was at the piano.

RAID FOR RATES.

LONGFORD CASE TRIED BEFORE DUBLIN JURY.

ATTACK ON CIVIC GUARDS.

At the Dublin County Commission yesterday, before the Lord Chief Justice,

James Brennan was charged with having on September 28, 1922, at Ardoghill, County Longford, together with two other persons unknown, they being armed with revolvers, assaulted Peter Mulvihill with intent to rob.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Dudley White, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), prosecuted. The prisoner was not professionally represented.

Mr. Carrigan said that the prisoner, with two others, went to the house of Peter Mulvihill, rate collector, and compelled him to hand over the rate money which he had collected. Fortunately the military came along and arrested the three men, who wore masks. They escaped from custody subsequently, but the prisoner was re-arrested.

Peter Mulvihill, Ardoghill, Co. Longford, stated that he is a rate collector. On two occasions he had been stopped on the road by armed and masked men and robbed. On September 28, between 9 and 10 p.m., three masked men came to the house and demanded the rate money which he had collected. He asked why they demanded it, and they said that they "did not want the others to get it." By that he understood that they meant the Free State Government. He handed them £15, and then the military came on the scene. The prisoner was one of the men.

Asked if he wished to cross-examine the witness, the prisoner said that he was a citizen of the Irish Republic and did not recognise the Court.

The Lord Chief Justice—You are only asked if you wish to ask any questions.

Prisoner—I do not. I was there under orders to ask for money.

Lieutenant J. J. Coughlan stated that he, with a party of military, arrived at Mulvihill's house and found three masked men there. Witness took off the masks which they were wearing. Near the men he found a revolver on the ground. Subsequently the three men escaped from custody, but the prisoner was recaptured.

Volunteer James Noonan and Sergeant McNally, Civic Guard, were also examined.

The case for the prosecution having closed,

The prisoner was asked if he wished to address the jury.

He replied—"All I have to say is that I am a soldier of the Irish Republic and I do not recognise the Court. I don't see why I should be brought here at all."

The Lord Chief Justice struck out from the indictment "being armed with revolvers," because there was no legal evidence that the prisoner had a revolver. Only one revolver was found amongst the three men.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and he was asked by the Lord Chief Justice if he would promise to be of good behaviour if he was let out for Christmas.

The prisoner said that he would. He had never been up on any charge before. He had two brothers in the Free State Army and his father was an old man.

The Lord Chief Justice then imposed a sentence of four months' hard labour from August 29, with a recommendation to the Governor of the prison that the prisoner be released ten days before Christmas.

Prisoner—Thank you, my lord.

ATTACK ON CIVIC GUARDS.

John Kiernan was charged with having, at Oughill, Co. Longford, on May 26, shot at Civic Guards Pierce Purcell and James Cawley with intent to murder them.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty and was undefended.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., said that the two Civic Guards were, in the ordinary discharge of their duties, serving court summonses, and had served one on the prisoner's brother. When they came outside of the house they were stopped by the prisoner and another man, who were armed with rifles. The Guards were ordered to put up their hands and to leave their bicycles. They had no option but to comply. The prisoner marched behind them for some distance, keeping them covered with his rifle. When they got out of sight they went into a field for observation purposes. They saw the prisoner with his rifle levelled at them, and a bullet whizzed past them.

Civic Guard Pierce Purcell was examined and corroborated counsel's statement.

Prisoner—Do you say that it was I fired the shot?

Witness—I cannot say.

The Lord Chief Justice—What became of the second man?

Witness—He stayed at Kiernan's house.

The Lord Chief Justice said that, as it had not been proved which of the two men fired the shot, the jury should bring in a verdict of "not guilty."

A verdict of "not guilty" was accordingly returned.

The prisoner was then indicted for having, with another man unknown, while armed with rifles, assaulted Civic Guards Purcell and Cawley and stolen their bicycles.

Evidence as already given was repeated, but it was stated that the bicycles had since been recovered.

Asked if he wished to say anything, the prisoner said: "I was in the Republican Army and I considered it my duty to do this, and I did it."

The jury found the prisoner guilty.

The Lord Chief Justice sentenced the prisoner to twelve months' imprisonment, with a recommendation that the prisoner be put in the modified Borstal class.

POSSESSION OF A FARM.

Three young men, named Patrick O'Neill, Martin Sheehy and Thomas Davis, were charged with having, on August 17, 1922, together with other persons unknown, being then armed and disguised, attempted, by force and menaces, to compel Thomas Cooney, of Ballina, Co. Clare, to give up possession of certain lands.

Mr. Carrigan stated that on the night in question two of the prisoners broke into Cooney's house, and dragged Cooney out at the point of the revolver. A third man then came on, and they dragged Cooney some distance away and threatened him with death unless he gave up a small farm which he had purchased.

The jury found the prisoners guilty.

The Lord Chief Justice sentenced Sheehy to nine months' imprisonment, O'Neill to eight months and Davis to six months, all with hard labour.

MANSLAUGHTER.

Thomas Heaver pleaded guilty to the manslaughter of John Cawley on the 2nd of April last, near Ballymote, Co. Sligo.

Mr. Joseph O'Connor, for the prisoner, said that in 1916 the prisoner got a field from the Congested Districts Board, and had a right of way through John Cawley's land. On the 22nd April, 1923, the prisoner was taking some potatoes along the right of way in a donkey car. He found the gate locked, and Cawley refused to open it. The prisoner then got a hammer to open the gate. Prisoner's brother—who is a cripple—came on, and Cawley drew a stick at him. The prisoner then hit Cawley on the arm and head with the hammer. Cawley's skull was fractured, and he died about three weeks afterwards.

Prisoner's brother bore out this statement.

A Civic Guard sergeant said that the prisoner, who had a public-house in Ballymote, was a man of excellent character, and had a wife and three young children.

The Lord Chief Justice said that he tried to be merciful to the living, but he should also try to do justice to the dead. He would consider the matter carefully, and pronounce sentence in the morning.

The Court adjourned.

Parties of homeless children are continually arriving in Moscow from all parts of Russia. The children are in a pitiable condition, having lost their parents and every means of livelihood.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR DERBY.

SOVAL'S EASY WIN AT LEICESTER.

GREAT FINISH FOR HARBOROUGH HANDICAP.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

DERBY, Tuesday Night.

If the large amount of rain which is hanging about the Midlands does not spoil the proceedings there should be quite good racing here to-morrow afternoon, for the arrival list is a strong one, and a number of high-class horses are due to run. The Markeaton Handicap especially looks like being a good race. Westmead came on here after winning at Liverpool, and will attempt to carry his 9lb. penalty, but may find more than one too good for him. Clochnaben also came on from Liverpool, where he ran below expectations. Donoghue rides him to-morrow, but I can hardly see his chance. Re-Echo, for one, should beat him, for he finished in front of him in the Cambridgeshire, and is likely to do so again.

It is probable that the race will rest between Sir Ernest Paget's colt and The Night Patrol. Re-Echo has run some very bad races this season, and I am afraid he is none too reliable. The Night Patrol, on the other hand, is a model of consistency. He ran a really good race in the Great Tom Plate under a heavy weight, and he may be able to get the better of Re-Echo here. Heverswood, another mount for Donoghue, has a lot of weight to give away in the Chesterfield Nursery. For example, he has to give three stone to the Wayward colt, a youngster who is a good deal fancied, and three stone is a lot in the heavy going. There was no disgrace attaching to the defeat of Heverswood in the Free Handicap. He simply failed to give weight away to a pair of exceptionally speedy two-year-olds in Eton Wick and Chronometer. There are some possibilities about Wykeham, but I think HEVERSWOOD should just about win.

The King's Newbury winner, RESINATO, will be ridden by Childs in the Rangemore Maiden Stakes, and as Windward may not be sent he will probably win. The Doveridge Plate seems to rest between HARD BATTLE and Young Pole, and I regard the former as the more generous of the pair.

ROYAL DEFEATS ROMAN BACHELOR.

There was a good deal to interest, despite the downpour of rain, in this afternoon's racing at Leicester, where Mr. Frank Curzon's Soval easily won the Leicestershire Handicap by three lengths. Roman Bachelor should have beaten Soval easily, but it was exactly the other way about here. Roman Bachelor started a strong favourite, but he might as well have remained in his stable, for he was never in the hunt, and finished among the middle division, alongside his former stable companion, Greek Bachelor (Smirke).

It is a melancholy tale to have to be told of Roman Bachelor since Major Nigel Baring took him from Ireland for Mr. Gilpin's stable four years ago. Mr. Gilpin thought him exceptional, but a mile victory in the Ewhurst Cup at the opening of his three-year-old days sent him so high in the handicap that he seems never to have recovered from the shock. When he won the Findon Stakes at Goodwood last year the stable did not back him for a copper, and victories in two events at Lingfield, where he started at odds on on each occasion, did not bring much profit.

Last winter he left Clarehaven for Captain Gooch's place, and it was one of the tragedies of this season when he was beaten in the Lincolnshire Handicap by the egregious White Bud. With his stable companion, Poisoned Arrow, out of the way, he would have won the Duke of York Handicap. Soval won with ridiculous ease this afternoon, and since it was stated that Mr. Frank Curzon is retiring from racing—which he is not yet, by the way—a great change of luck has attended his stable.

AN EXCITING FINISH.

There was a great finish for the Harborough Handicap, there being heads only between Eltonian, who won, Nectarinia, Ruysdael, Dryad, and Anchorsheline. Anchorsheline was such a favourite that 10 to 1 bar one was offered. When she swerved at the start it seemed to be all over so far as she was concerned, but she made up the ground, and was with the leaders in the last furlong. However, Eltonian, who had got a flyer, remained in front and hung on just long enough to hold up Nectarinia and Ruysdael. Donoghue rode Mr. Arthur McCann's Junian in the Humberstone Selling Plate, but the colt was not good enough, and Barry, riding a fine finish on Scratch, beat Retina by a neck. GALTEE MORE.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

Entries for several important two-year-old races to be run at the Curragh next season, the Maiden Plate at Punchestown, and the Leopardstown Handicap Steeplechase, close to-day.

Mr. J. D. Cohn heads the list of winning owners on the flat in France with about 1,500,000 francs, followed by M. C. Rauneci, whose gains are in the neighbourhood of a million.

Battery Smoke was saddled at Leicester on Monday by Jonathan Bate, who 55 years ago won a race at Leicester on Rocket. Officials were hot then to stick to racing matters, and the distance of the race appeared to be "a mile and a half," though it had been advertised in the "Calendar" as 2½ miles. Bate refused to start at the two miles post, and the matter being referred to the Stewards, the starter had to remove his position further back.

It is stated that M. Beary has been retained to ride Cavalcade in the Derby, Gold Flin and Little Marten in the Manchester November Handicap.

John Grandy, son of the Curragh trainer F. Grandy, is the 16th addition to the list of apprentice jockeys. He had his first mount at Phœnix Park on Saturday last, and he will ride for his father's stable during next season.

Mr. Frank Rogers has purchased the promising five-year-old jumper, Soldier's Joy, by The Recruiting Officer out of The Lady Slavey.

Joseph Canty, who has been laid up with a very severe cold and a high temperature, is now quite convalescent, and he will be seen in the saddle at the Curragh next week.

Instructions have been issued for the serving of writs on the promoters of English North-country meetings. The defendants will be summoned to the King's Bench Division, and the proceedings will be regarded as a test case.

It is stated that Mr. R. H. Wethered, the amateur golf champion, is to become a stock-broker, a business in which his friend, Mr. C. J. H. Tolley, is already engaged.

The trainer, Arthur Childs, will take the place in association with G. Stern vacated by R. Carver, who, it is understood, has been appointed private trainer for Lord Derby in France.

Mr. J. R. Widener's Dactylic, who was written about by New York journalists as the probable winner of this year's Grand National, ran second for a £1,000 two-mile steeplechase at Laurel Maryland, on the day that Rev beat Papyrus at Belmont Park, says the Star.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

DEPRESSED QUOTATIONS IN FUNDS AND BANK STOCK; TOBACCOS AND SHELLS RALLYING. TEXTILES OFFERED.

The record of yesterday's transactions on the Dublin Stock Exchange was distinctly disappointing, as further material declines were established, but some of the price movements belonged in reality to the past few days' depression rather than the actual day's fluctuations owing to the absence of quotations recording the decline at the time. It is, however, believed the "shake out" will do the market good, and already in a few directions fresh support showed signs of coming forward. The Funds quoted show mostly sharp falls on last prices quoted here, but War Loan 5 p.c. was freely bid for at yesterday's figure. The Bank market was conspicuous by a fall of several points in Bank of Ireland Stock; otherwise quotations were quietly supported. Guinness Ord. for cash gave way, but other prices in Breweries and Distilleries were well held. City Steam Pref. relapsed, and Marconi Shares were dull. Great Northern Ord. Stock rallied somewhat from the previous day's depression. Midland Great Western Ord. was still under sale pressure. Dunlop and Parent Tyre issues were quiet. Tobaccos hardened a trifle, and Shell Transports also recovered tone.

In the Funds, etc., Consols fell ¼ to 56½, Guaranteed Land 2½ p.c. 1½ to 59½, Irish Land 2½ p.c. 1½ to 58⅝, and India 3½ p.c. 2⅜ to 66½, but War Loan 5 p.c. closed ⅛ better at 100 to 100¼ nominally, and at the later market further improved to 100⅜. Dublin Port and Docks fell ¼ to 57, and Dublin Corporation Stock repeated 67⅜.

In Banking Securities, Bank of Ireland Stock slumped 3½ to 244, but Nationals rose ½ to 19½, and Munsters were steady at 6⅝.

Breweries and Distilleries were busy, and the only change was a fall of ¼ to 37¼ in Guinness Ord. Shares, but at the later market the price rallied to 37½. The Pref. repeated 11⅞, Dublin Distillers Pref. 61s. 3d., J. Jameson and Son Debs. 7⅛ ½, and J. Power and Son Pref. 20s.

City of Dublin Steam Pref. fell 1 to 101½. Marconi Ord. fell 3d. to 43s. 9d., but Radio Pref. repeated 17s.

As regards Home Rails, Great Northern Ord. recovered ⅜ to 60⅜, but the Pref. fell ½ to 64½. Great Southern Ord. repeated 47⅞ and the Pref. 58½. Midland Great Western Ord. fell ⅛ to 35, while the 4½ p.c. Debs. show no change at 73. Ballinrobe and Clare-morris Baronial fell 1s. to 59s. for an odd lot.

In Trams, Dublin United Pref. remain bid for at 9⅞, the last business done level, but the 4 p.c. (D.S.D.) 4 p.c. Debs. gave way ⅛ to 66.

Dunlop Rubber Ord. fell 3d. to 8s. 9d., and Parent Tyre Ord. rose 1s. 3d. to 13s. 9d.

Alliance and Dublin Consumers Gas Shares fell ⅛ to 62.

In Bakery Shares, Bolands Ord. fell 6d. to 55s. 6d. for a small lot.

Drapery Shares were quiet. Arnott Ord. fell ⅛ to 4⅜, while the Pref. repeated 75s., and Todd Burns Pref. 74s.

Among Manufacturing Shares, British-American Tobaccos rallied 3d. to 102s. 6d., and Imperials 6d. to 69s. 9d., after touching 70s. Coats were steadier at 63s., but Cottons fell 4½d. to 47s. 9d., and Spinners 1s. 6d. to 47s. 6d. Helys Ord. rose 6d. to 22s., and Lever Bros. 7 p.c. Pref. 1½d. to 21s. 7½d.

In Trading, etc., Burke Debs. fell ½ to 8, while Thom Debs. repeated 65.

Other business done included Daily Mail Trust 7 p.c. Debs., which repeated 2⅜ prem. Distillers New Pref. opened 6d. prem., and closed at 3d. prem. Shells rose 2s. 3d. to 78s. 6d.

LONDON STOCKS BETTER.

SLIGHT RECOVERY.

The Stock markets opened yesterday morning with a slightly more cheerful tone, largely owing to a sharp recovery in foreign exchanges and the probability that the period of uncertainty arising out of the general election will be shorter than was expected. Later on there was an almost general recovery, following a lead set by Gilt-edged securities, but this was not continued, and the tone during the afternoon and towards the close was very quiet. In the Gilt-edged market during the day British Funds showed a disposition to recover from the slump of Monday, and there were several advances. Consols rose ½ to 56½. The 5 per cent. War Loan at 100 rose ¼; Funding Loan put on a point at 87, and the Conversion Loan at 76½ rose a point. India 7 per cent. Loan fell 1 to 114. FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were firmer on the lead of French Loans, which were quite strong. The Fives at 26½ rose 1⅛, and the Fours at 20 gained ½. Egyptian Unified at 72 ex div. rose ½; Japan 4½ per cent. at 107 fell a point.

The HOME RAILWAY market was more cheerful and responded to the improved tone elsewhere, but, at the same time, changes were only small, the market being very cautious. Great Westerns were unchanged. London Midland and Scottish Ord. at 103⅜ rose ⅛, and the 4 per cent. Pref. at 79½ gained a point. London and North-Easterns generally recovered the losses of Monday. The Def.-Ord. rose ⅛ to 31⅞, while the 1st Pref. at 79½ and the 2nd Pref. at 78½ both gained a point. In Southerns, the only security was a rise of ⅛ to 39 in the Def.-Ord. Undergrounds generally recovered, Metropolitans being 1 up at 74½, Districts ⅛ at 54, and Underground Electric Income Bonds 1 at 100.

The COLONIAL AND FOREIGN RAIL market was remarkable for the downward movements in Grand Trunks; the Guaranteed at 79 fell 2 points, the Pacific Debs. 2 points to 39½, and the Perpetual Debs. 1 to 79. Argentines were better; B.A.G.S. rose ½ to 80½, Pacifics ½ to 70½, Westerns 1 to 71, and Centrals ½ to 65½. Americans were steady, but quiet.

OIL SHARES ACTIVE.

ROYAL DUTCH AND SHELLS IN FAVOUR.

Leading issues continued to monopolise attention in the Oil Share market yesterday, with Royal Dutch and Shells providing the most active spots, but although both shares registered advances, as a result of the day's business, final prices were below the best. Movements in other favourites were of an irregular character. The commencement of dealings for the new account was characterised by a continuance of active business in Shells and Royal Dutch. As a result of the day's business both Shells and Royal Dutch showed further advances. Anglo-Persians, however, failed to hold the whole of the preceding day's advance, and Burmahs also left off slightly easier. Mexican Eagles were an uninteresting market. An irregular tendency characterised Trinidad issues. Leaseholds left off easier, but Apex and United British improved. A further decline in Phœnix was the only quotable alteration among Rumanians, while, apart from a loss in North Caucasians, Russians were unchanged. The British Controlled issues failed to make any recovery, but V.O.C. holdings hardened. Anglo-Ecuadorians were held for in the early hours at an advance, but slipped back in the afternoon, and finally registered a small loss. Closing prices:—

LONDON MINING MARKET GOOD.

HEAVY BUYING OF KAFFIRS.

The Mining departments, which are only sympathetically affected by political uncertainties, continued in good fettle, and in several directions there were unmistakable signs of a broadening of public interest. Despite the incidence of the general carry-over, Kaffirs again attracted a great deal of attention, the highly satisfactory position and prospects of the industry bringing in buyers on home, Continental and Cape account. The news that the Supreme Court of the Union upholds the decision of the magistrate that the regulation known as the "Colour Bar" is ultra vires was a stimulating factor. It is recognised that, as was stated at the time of the magisterial ruling, there is not the slightest doubt that the removal of the colour bar would revolutionise mining in the Transvaal, and already the effect of the elimination of redundant white employés and the greater efficiency of the workers is being reflected in the actual results obtained by the producing mines. The industry is now on a sounder basis than for years past, and it is, therefore, not surprising to find the shares of good-class undertakings in strong demand. Johannesburg bought largely Anglo-American, Modderfontein and Robinson Deep "B"; but sold Witwatersrand Deep. The market here kept very firm, and the buying of leading counters was described as of the right sort, public inquiries being on an increasing scale. One firm alone acquired a very big parcel of Crown Mines, paying 62s. 6d. and 63s. 9d. for them. Springs Mines changed hands at over 2½, and Brakpan as high as 3¾, the latter being picked up by Paris. With regard to the former, shrewd operators expressed the opinion that they are the pick of the basket. It is pretty certain that the dividend due next month will be 3s. 6d. per share, making 6s. for the year, or 30 per cent., on which basis the yield at the current price is 10 per cent. With the milling capacity being steadily increased, production is rising month by month, and as costs are declining the market is confident of distributions amounting to 40 per cent. next year. West Springs were a good market, and after changing hands at 26s. 3d. they closed either side of this price, while the options advanced to 11s. 6d. The East Rand is unfortunate, an accident having occurred in the Hercules Sha
